Canadian Film Producer Shot In Kentucky

Landlord Arrested Near Coal Mine Filming Location

WHITESBURG, Ky. (AP) — A prominent Canadian film producer was shot to death Wednesday as he and a four-man production crew filmed scenes of poverty in this mountainous eastern Kentucky area.

Hugh O'Connor died soon after being hit with a .38-caliber slug in his chest. Hobart Ison, 69, of the Jeremiah community, was charged with murder. A hearing was set for this afternoon.

The 46-year-old Montreal native was on leave from the Canadian National Film Board to produce a film on "All Walks of Life in the United States" for Francis Thompson, Inc., a New York City firm that specializes in educational documentaries.

Ison owns a cluster of houses at a coal mine camp about five miles north of here on Ky Route 7. It was this cluster of shacks that the crew was filming when O'Connor was shot to death.

The four members of O'Connor's crew told this story to state and county authorities: They stopped to take pictures of some people beside the road.

After 40 minutes of picture-taking, when they were winding up their session, a car drove up and a man whom they had never seen jumped out yelling, "Get off my property!"

The crew members and O'Connor began gathering their gear when the man fired two shots above them.

As the crew was putting the equipment into their car across the road, the man fired a third shot, this time at the group, which struck O'Connor in the chest, killing him.

"We had never seen him before," said Theodore Holcomb, one of the crew members. "He didn't know who we were, I'm sure."

Holcomb said he and the other three crew members hadn't decided whether they would continue filming for the documentary.

Hearing Set In Lake Erie Dispute

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—The first of a series of hearings on a Michigan-Ohio boundary dispute over a section of Lake Erie waters has been scheduled for Oct. 18 at Toledo.

Rep. Raymond Kehres, D-Monroe, reported the date was set by Judge Albert Maris, the federal referee, in Philadelphia Wednesday at the close of a preliminary hearing.

"Preliminary statements will be presented by Michigan and Ohio spokesmen and boats will be provided for a cruise over the disputed area in Lake Erie," Kehres said.

Kehres said a visit also will be made to the so-called "Lost Peninsula" near Toledo. This is a tiny finger of land jutting out into Lake Erie. The land belongs to Michigan but can be reached by land only through Ohio.

Kehres said the group will look for a key marker monument, No. 71, which is believed to have been washed away or otherwise destroyed.

"The No. 71 marker will be re-established and its location will mark the point from which Michigan contends the Michigan-Ohio boundary should continue eastward instead of veering to the northeast," Kehres said.

The hearing was initiated through the U. S. Supreme Court in a suit filed by Michigan against Ohio.

Michigan and Ohio have been disputing possession of a large area of Lake Erie since Michigan became a state in 1837 and the issue never has been legally settled.

HURRICANE POUNDS MEXICAN WILDERNESS REGION — Members of a Mexican family wade through knee-deep debris to clear out their hut after Hurricane Beulah stormed through Chetumal in the wilderness territory of Quintana Roo.

Hurricane Damage Hits $500 Million

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — Faltering Hurricane Beulah crawled farther inland today and tentative federal estimates of the monster storm's damage to agriculture and structural property were placed at a staggering $500 million.

Dangerous flooding and the menace of spin-off tornadoes continued to plague a vast area of southern Texas.

The storm's winds, once estimated at 160 miles an hour, dropped below minimum hurricane force—75 m.p.h.—early today.

Beulah's main track measured some 160 miles inland from Brownsville, where she raged ashore early Wednesday. She veered ever more westward.

The half-billion-dollar damage estimate was advanced by officials from the regional Denton Federal Center. George Hastings, regional director of the Office of Emergency Planning, said he would begin a detailed damage assessment today.

Hurricane-triggered rains of more than a foot brought many streams above flood stage.

Reports of damage from surging floodwaters and tornadoes indicated no let-up of havoc and destruction in the wake of the massive storm.

The Red Cross said 84,877 persons slept in 295 shelters Wednesday night. Civil defense and Red Cross workers said they fed 90,322 persons this morning.

Evacuation of low areas at inland points such as Cuero and Victoria began as heavy rains continued.

Observers said many places which sustained wind and tide damage Wednesday were suffering even worse today from flooding. The Guadalupe River was 6 feet above flood stage at Victoria.

A morning twister destroyed 15 houses and damaged 35 others in the Fulton Beach area near Rockport, the Arkansas County Sheriff's office said.

The eye of the hurricane passed over some of the world's richest cattle country, including the King and Armstrong Ranches between Raymondville and Kingsville, south of Corpus Christi.

Tobie Armstrong of the Armstrong Ranch said today that hurricane winds lashed the spread for 17 hours Wednesday but that damage to buildings and cattle was expected to be light. Large mesquite trees by the score were toppled, he added.

Floods boiled up along rivers and creeks faster than harried disaster relief officials could keep track of them.

The small city of Alice, 40 miles west of Corpus Christi, was deluged by 7.28 inches of rain. Victoria, about 100 miles north of Corpus Christi, recorded 8.30 inches. Other towns and cities in the storm area recorded rains in two-digit figures, topped by 13.80 inches at Tuleta, 70 miles northeast of here.

A 13-day-old storm that began in the Atlantic, Beulah claimed 30 lives—six in Texas. Eighteen died in the Caribbean and the rest perished in Mexico's southern regions.

Shots Fired At Truckers On Ohio Roads

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Truck drivers in several Ohio counties were shot at in the pre-dawn darkness today as violence continued in the steel haulers dispute. No one was injured.

The strike by independent steel truckers in seven states has forced steel mills to cut back production. Republic Steel Corp. said 2,500 of the 7,000 workers at its Cleveland facilities will be idle by the end of the week.

Four trucks were fired at in Columbiana County. Two were hit. Four tires were punctured on a truck in Trumbull County and another shot at in Jefferson County.

Tuscarawas County sheriff's deputies arrested five Columbiana County men in Uhrichsville and charged them with possession of concealed weapons. Deputies found three loaded handguns in the auto and said the men told them they were truckers.

The auto was stopped on Water Street early today after deputies were alerted by Highway Patrolmen who spotted the car in the parking lot of a truck stop in Newcomerstown, about 15 miles south of Dover.

When the Patrol approached, the car sped away. Deputies set up a road block.

Besides the three weapons, deputies found 170 pounds of ammunition, two fire bombs and a number of bricks.

The men are being held in Tuscarawas County Jail in New Philadelphia and will be arraigned in Southern District County Court in Uhrichsville. No

U.S. Court Appeal Due For Keaton

Cleo Vernon Keaton, accused murderer of four people, who was sentenced to the Ohio Penitentiary's chair Oct. 20 by the Ohio Supreme Court, may get another chance, according to his lawyer, Emanuel Nadin.

Nadin, a Dayton attorney, said Wednesday he plans to appeal Keaton's conviction to the U. S. Supreme Court. His announcement came shortly after the Ohio Supreme Court rejected Keaton's appeal and set the execution date.

Keaton, 29, was convicted of first degree murder stemming from the death of Maurice Francis near Williamsport in 1965. He is also accused of two tavern slayings and another death during a liquor store holdup in Dayton.

Columbus Police Quell Violence

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Some fire bombings, minor looting and window smashings erupted on Columbus' near East Side in a predominantly Negro section Wednesday night.

Before some 200 shotgun-armed police restored order early today three persons had been hurt and 27 arrested.

Police were reluctant to call it a racial disturbance, with top officials claiming only gangs of young hoodlums were responsible. But total calm did not come until about dawn, and police continued on the alert.

The heavily-reinforced police squads actually had been called out twice to quell the trouble, first early in the evening to break up a disturbance near a Mount Vernon Avenue tailor shop picketed by 10 persons who claimed the owner refused to rent space to the Congress of Racial Equality.

Eight squadmen attempted to disperse the crowd but then called for help. About 8:30 p.m. most of the policemen withdrew from the area, only to be called back in force around 10:30 p.m. when a small crowd, one policeman said, "suddenly appeared to go nuts," breaking windows at the tailor shop.

Three fires were reported started by fire bombs. Another reportedly was set in a vacant building. Damage was slight in all four fires.

A jewelry store was looted of several hundred dollars worth of goods, as was the tailor shop but neither instance was credited by police to any organized looting, only "grab and run" tactics by teen-age youths.

One of the injured was a policeman hit by a rock. The others were Negroes cut slightly by flying glass.

As quiet was restored Thursday, police official began investigating persons involved in picketing of the clothing store and tailor shop where the outbreak began.

Poll Losers Demand U.S. Leave Viet

SAIGON (AP)—The U.S. Embassy has received a letter from four defeated South Vietnamese presidential candidates demanding "that the U.S. government stop intervening in Vietnamese internal affairs."

There was no immediate comment from U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker, to whom the letter was addressed.

The letter claimed that the United States had intervened "with the aim of legitimizing the rigged and undemocratic Sept. 3 election."

It apparently referred to the 22 election observers sent by President Johnson and to statements by Bunker that the election was "run fairly and freely."

Chief of state Nguyen Van Thieu and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky were elected president and vice president in the election, defeating 10 civilian tickets. Several of the defeated civilians have since accused Thieu and Ky of rigging the elections.

The letter to Bunker was signed by lawyer Truong Dinh Dzu, who ran second to Thieu and Ky, Phan Khac Suu, assembly chairman, who ran third and also-ran Nguyen Hoa Hiep and Vu Hong Khanh. Pham Thai, a defeated senatorial candidate also signed the letter.

Negotiators Reach Accord On Salary Boost

NEW YORK (AP) — Tentative agreement on a reported $135.4-million wage package has apparently ended the teachers' strike that kept many of New York City's 1.1 million public school pupils out of class for eight days.

Both school officials and union leaders said after the agreement was reached Wednesday, they hoped normal operations in the nation's largest school system could begin on Monday.

A spokesman for the striking AFL-CIO United Federation of Teachers local said picket lines would continue until the full membership ratified the contract. A mass meeting for the purpose is expected Sunday.

The Board of Education asked pupils to stay home today. The walkout began Sept. 11, the start of the fall term, in defiance of a no-strike order from the State Supreme Court.

The three top union leaders were due in court today for an off-delayed trial on criminal contempt charges.

Details of the proposed contract were not made public. Albert Shanker, president of the 49,000-member UFT, said the specifics were being withheld because "it would not be conducive to ratification."

However, the package was reported to provide $135.4 million in salary increases and other benefits over a 26-month period from last July 1 to Sept. 10, 1969. The union had turned down a two-year $125-million offer.

At the outset of negotiations the UFT sought an annual wage scale for teachers of $7,500 to $18,000 to replace the old scale of $5,400 to $11,950. The $125-million package, recommended by a three-man mediation panel, was scaled from $6,600 to $13,600.

Other issues in the strike included union demands for a reduction in class size, more preparation time for teachers and greater freedom for teachers in dealing with disruptive pupils in classes.

The latter issue aroused considerable resentment among some Negro and Puerto Rican groups which felt it was aimed primarily at youngsters in slum schools. It was not immediately known how the issue was resolved.

Walkout Snarls Montreal Traffic

MONTREAL (AP) — Montreal bus and subway employees went on strike with only a few hours' warning early today, causing huge traffic jams during the morning rush hours and striking a major blow at Expo 67.

Most of the city's 1.3 million daily public transportation riders learned of the walkout after they woke up. They improvised car pools, hailed taxis, hitchhiked, rode motorcycles and trucks and walked.

Workers who reached their offices told of taking two hours to make trips that ordinarily required 35 minutes.

Expo remained open and transportation on the fair's two man-made islands in the St. Lawrence was operating. The problem for fairgoers, particularly out of towners who had arrived without automobiles, was to get to the fair's site. There were no immediate reports of the strike's effect on attendance at the fair.

Ohioan Sentenced In Budapest

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Richard Goos, 23, of Hamilton Ohio, today was sentenced to four months in prison by a Budapest court which found him guilty of having attempted to take an East German girl illegally over the Hungarian border into Yugoslavia.

He already has spent two months in custody, pending the trial, which would be deducted from the time to be served.

Goos, a commercial law student at Indiana University who had spent about a year at Bonn, West Germany, on a scholarship, pleaded guilty to the charge.

He told judges at Budapest's Central District Court he knew he had done something wrong but was actuated "by high moral consideration."

He said he had intended to marry the East German girl, who was earlier identified as Doris Beilich of East Berlin.

Details of the proposed contract were not made public. Albert Shanker, president of the 49,000-member UFT, said the specifics were being withheld because "it would not be conducive to ratification."

However, the package was reported to provide $135.4 million in salary increases and other benefits over a 26-month period from last July 1 to Sept. 10, 1969. The union had turned down a two-year $125-million offer.

At the outset of negotiations the UFT sought an annual wage scale for teachers of $7,500 to $18,000 to replace the old scale of $5,400 to $11,950. The $125-million package, recommended by a three-man mediation panel, was scaled from $6,600 to $13,600.

Other issues in the strike included union demands for a reduction in class size, more preparation time for teachers and greater freedom for teachers in dealing with disruptive pupils in classes.

The latter issue aroused considerable resentment among some Negro and Puerto Rican groups which felt it was aimed primarily at youngsters in slum schools. It was not immediately known how the issue was resolved.

Walkout Snarls Montreal Traffic

MONTREAL (AP) — Montreal bus and subway employees went on strike with only a few hours' warning early today, causing huge traffic jams during the morning rush hours and striking a major blow at Expo 67.

Most of the city's 1.3 million daily public transportation riders learned of the walkout after they woke up. They improvised car pools, hailed taxis, hitchhiked, rode motorcycles and trucks and walked.

Workers who reached their offices told of taking two hours to make trips that ordinarily required 35 minutes.

Expo remained open and transportation on the fair's two man-made islands in the St. Lawrence was operating. The problem for fairgoers, particularly out of towners who had arrived without automobiles, was to get to the fair's site. There were no immediate reports of the strike's effect on attendance at the fair.

Ohioan Sentenced In Budapest

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Richard Goos, 23, of Hamilton Ohio, today was sentenced to four months in prison by a Budapest court which found him guilty of having attempted to take an East German girl illegally over the Hungarian border into Yugoslavia.

He already has spent two months in custody, pending the trial, which would be deducted from the time to be served.

Goos, a commercial law student at Indiana University who had spent about a year at Bonn, West Germany, on a scholarship, pleaded guilty to the charge.

He told judges at Budapest's Central District Court he knew he had done something wrong but was actuated "by high moral consideration."

He said he had intended to marry the East German girl, who was earlier identified as Doris Beilich of East Berlin.

Shots Fired

The men were identified as Thomas Bratt, 47, and Lester Bratt, 49, both of East Liverpool; Ronald McGaffick, 28, and Mark Stone, 44, both of Rd. 4, Lisbon, and Robert Harris, 35, of Lisbon.
Deputies said they were trying to determine if the men are connected with the shooting incidents involving truckers in several Ohio counties.
Lawrence Willis, 35, of Scenery Hills, Pa., told the Highway Patrol one of his tires was flattened by a shot fired from a grassy area on U. S. 30, about eight miles north of East Liverpool in Columbiana County. He was driving a rig loaded with miscellaneous freight for the Suwak Trucking Co. of Washington, Pa.
Right behind was another Suwak truck driven by Charles Bails, 31, also of Washington, Pa. Bails said he saw flashes from the same area as he drove by and heard something hit the pavement under the truck.
Anthony Harvey of Youngstown was driving a rig for the Keystone Transportation Co. of Youngstown and said his truck was shot at but not hit as he drove on Ohio 344 east of Leetonia in northern Columbiana County.
Another trucker, Charles L. Ball, 57, of Huntington, W. Va., said four tires were shot out by someone who came up behind him on Ohio 7 near Wellsview. Ball was hauling nickel on a flat bed trailer.
Joseph Redmond, driving for the Hume's Transport Co. of Steubenville, said six or seven shots were fired from an auto at his truck on Ohio 22 in Jefferson County. There was no damage.
Four tires were punctured on a truck driven by James E. Parson, 42, of Pittsburgh. Parson said a car moved into the passing lane on Ohio 5 in Trumbull County and fired on his rig. The car then turned around and went back towards Warren, he told the Patrol.
Parsons, driving a truck owned by the Oyler Motor Transit Co. of Canton, drove on to a truck stop near the Ohio Turnpike. The Patrol said the shots went clean through the tires.

Hurricane....

Flooding plagued the southern half of Texas and threatened to be a major problem for days. The rains showed no signs of abating as Gulf of Mexico tides swept headlong up river beds and collided with flood waters from Beulah's rains.
In an unprecedented move the State Department announced through Texas officials at Austin that the United States and Mexico had declared a disaster area along the border Rio Grande.
"The U.S. Immigration service is to open the international border and it is to remain open until further notice," a Texas spokesman said.
Brownsville's sister city of Matamoros, Mexico, sustained heavy damage from Beulah, as did Reynosa, Mexico, just across the river from Edinburg, Tex.
The Coast Guard was dispatching three amphibious airplanes from Corpus Christi today to survey damage in the storm's main track.
Tornadoes dealt damage in the millions of dollars. A final accounting of the storm's monetary harm was days—possibly weeks—away.
Electrical power was shut off to about one-fourth of the Texas land mass. Brownsville was the hardest hit city in the state. Beulah screamed ashore there with 160 m.p.h. winds and rains too heavy to measure.
Hurricane force winds continued at Alice, a city of 23,000 some 40 miles west of Corpus Christi. Downtown businesses were flooded as were most homes. The residents had fled inland or to shelters.
Lack of water was a problem elsewhere. The municipal filtering plant at Corpus was fouled by Gulf backup. The situation was the same along the coast, where some cities reported up to 85 per cent destruction.
Restoration of electrical power was days away, utility company spokesmen said.
Beulah kept her hurricane status for hours longer than expected. Once over land, most hurricanes quickly lose force.
She was centered 60 miles west of Corpus Christi at 5 a.m., when hurricane warnings finally were lowered.
Tragedy and the joy of a new childbirth were marked at Red Cross shelters in Alice. A little girl was born at 12:15 p.m. Wednesday in one shelter. The parents named her Beulah.
Already devastated were citrus and other crops in the Lower Rio Grande Valley which the state agriculture commissioner valued at $50 million. Entire towns along the lower coast remained isolated today.
Armed National Guardsmen patrolled Brownsville, Harlingen, San Benito and Port Isabel. A newsman who risked his life to view Beulah's devastation at Port Isabel put it this way: "The town looked as if there had been saturation bombing."
Communications were almost non-existent. Ham radio operators kept up a constant flow of information between Valley towns, whenever they had power for their transmitters.
Tornadoes whirled off in record numbers from Beulah, herself the third largest hurricane in recorded history. She was responsible for 30 confirmed twisters. There were unofficial reports of more than 50 sightings. One tornado hit tiny Burnet, Tex., some 250 miles to the north of Beulah's track.
Damage was heavy also in Matamoros, Mexico, across the border from Brownsville.
Beulah's eye never reached Corpus Christi but her force at this sparkling coastal resort, fishing and industrial metropolis still ranked her as the third worst for the city. Beulah's winds were clocked here by the Weather Bureau at 86 m.p.h. while a Corps of Engineers station caught gusts at 110 m.p.h.—34 m.p.h. faster than those of might Hurricane Carla in 1961.
Rains continued over a vast area today.
The Nueces River was flooding less than 40 miles north of Corpus Christi and salt water from the 7.7-foot tides forced the two water filtration stations serving this city's 200,000 population to shut down. Officials said water supplies on hand would last 24 hours.
State officials kept track of the storm and its effects from a complex in Austin called the Emergency Operating Center.

New Citizens

Miss Margaret Goode, Berger Hospital's director of nursing, returned Wednesday from a series of lectures on "Nursing Care of the Stroke Patient" at Bluefield State College in West Virginia.
Miss Goode was guest speaker for the two-day program sponsored by the West Virginia Heart Assn. in cooperation with the West Virginia Nurses Assn. and Bureau of Heart Disease Control.
James Stambaugh, Berger administrator, noted today that it was quite an honor for the city county hospital to have Miss Goode at the session.
Having served in the capacity of Director of Nursing at Berger since July 1, Miss Goode has a long list of credits in the area of caring for stroke patients. She recently had an article published in "Nursing Outlook," a national journal for the nursing profession.
Miss Goode, a native Pickaway Countian, holds three degrees in nursing. She is a graduate of St. Francis School of Nursing and has received her bachelor's and master's degrees in nursing from Ohio State University. She taught in the OSU School of Nursing for the past five years prior to accepting the position at Berger.
Accompanied by Mrs. William Neal R. N., Miss Goode is attending a three-day conference on obstetric, gynecologic and neonatal nursing in Indianapolis. They are expected to return here Sunday.
Mrs. Neal will be teaching an obstetrics refresher course for local nurses at the hospital. Fourteen have enrolled for the three-month course.
Auditor's Assistants Attend Conference
Mrs. Maxine Wilson and Mrs. Margaret Remy, both of the county auditor's office, attended the Southeastern Auditors Meeting in Logan Wednesday.
The 23 persons meeting discussed new bills passed by the state legislature that would effect their office.

Columbus . . . Senator Questions Pentagon Policy on Gun Association

The owner of the tailor shop maintained he had previously rented the quarters wanted by the picketers to a neighborhood group.
Safety Director Fred Simon said less than 40 persons caused the trouble but at one time more than 1,000 milled in the area about a mile from the heart of downtown Columbus.
A police wedge of 15 men, with bayonets fixed to riot shotguns, pushed the troublemakers step by step down the street from the center of the disturbance — a tailor shop on Mount Vernon Avenue.
Later police, cordoning the area, were showered with bottles and rocks thrown from darkness just beyond the street lights.
Twenty-three Negroes were arrested.
Mayor M.E. Sensenbrenner accused a "bunch of punks" of starting the trouble.
"Decent citizens concerned with their rights were not involved," he said.
Windows in at least 20 establishments were smashed. Owners boarded up the fronts after the violence subsided. Only minor looting was reported.
Several trash fires were started in the street. Later firebombs were thrown into a sporting goods store and a camera shop a mile from the trouble scene. Both fizzed and went out before they caused serious damage.
A man who identified himself as Ed Boston of New York, a field secretary for CORE, said his group plans to picket and boycott the tailoring shop until the owner rents a storefront he owns across the street.
WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid a duel of words over gun control legislation, Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan proposed today a Senate investigation of Pentagon policy toward the National Rifle Association.
The Republican asked the Senate Armed Services Committee to find out why the NRA has become "the exclusive sales agent" for surplus Army rifles.
His request coincided with initial Senate committee action on President Johnson's hotly contested firearms control bill.
That measure, bitterly opposed by the NRA, was approved Wednesday by the Senate juvenile delinquency subcommittee.
The 5 to 4 decision was only a preliminary skirmish in the gun control battle, which will be waged later in the full Judiciary Committee and in the Senate itself.
The Johnson bill would bar interstate mail-order firearms sales, along with over-the-counter handgun sales to out-of-state purchasers. It also would bar importation of military surplus handguns and required licensing of all firearms dealers, importers and manufacturers.
The inquiry Griffin seeks does not involve the firearms control

Church Union Plan Accepted

SEATTLE (AP) — Episcopal participants in the consultation on church union today had a go-ahead from their bishops to proceed with the drafting of a specific plan to unite their church with nine other major denominations.
The move could add a practical dimension to the talks, which so far have been confined to working out a consensus on basic principles rather than on a definite blueprint.
Assessing progress already made on principles, the bishops called it a "significant advance toward Christian unity in matters of doctrine, worship, sacraments and ministry, which have long divided loyal followers of Jesus Christ."
Most of the other churches involved already have authorized their delegations to begin putting the fundamentals into a framework. However, the Episcopal team, along with Methodists, have lacked clear-cut sanction to do so.
The green light from the bishops still was subject to concurrence by the lay-clergy branch of the church's bicameral legislative convention, which is body for the nation's 3.5 million Episcopalians.
The bishops Wednesday also approved a policy welcoming all baptized Christians—Protestant, Roman Catholic and Orthodox—to receive communion in Episcopal churches where their own churches permit it.
Episcopal practice has varied on the point, with some parishes inviting members of other churches to share communion, and others restricting it to confirmed Episcopalians.
In authorizing development of the 10-denomination union plan, the bishops directed the Episcopal ecumenical team also to pursue closer relations with communions not involved in the talks—Roman Catholics, Lutherans and Orthodox.
Other denominations involved are Methodists, United Presbyterians, the United Church of Christ, the Presbyterian Church U.S. (Southern), Christians (Disciples), Evangelical United Brethren, Christ, African Methodist Episcopal Church, African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, and the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church.

Viet War . . . Mrs. Croman Listed In 'Critical' Condition

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — Rain forced postponement of the 22nd annual Little Brown Jug harness racing classic Thursday with the race rescheduled for 1 p.m. Friday.
Rain began falling about 10:30 a.m., and while it was not sufficient to materially damage the track, the crowds began to disperse and racing officials decided to postpone it.
Prospects were for continued rain during the day.
The postponement brought memories to race fans of the torrential rains which drenched the track during the last two Brown Jug events.
Meanwhile, Romulus Hanover, sporting a 14-2 record for the year, including a victory in the Messenger Stakes, remained the 4-5 choice to win the $84,778 event.
The odds could lengthen on him should the track be dry and fast Friday, despite his No. 8 post position.
Mrs. Forest Croman, Route 4, was listed in critical condition at Riverside Methodist Hospital, Columbus, Thursday morning.
Mrs. Croman fell onto a concrete surface from a ladder at a second story level Wednesday sustaining severe head injuries.

Child Molestation Report Investigated

A reported child molestation is being investigated by Circleville Police.
The incident, which allegedly occurred Tuesday was reported to Police today. Patrolman Wesley Barton indicated today the father of the child involved was going to lodge charges against the accused man.

Sertomans Hear Berger Head

James Stambaugh, administrator of Berger Hospital, spoke to the Sertoma Club Wednesday night at the L and K Restaurant.
A short business meeting followed the talk. Plans were discussed to have a putting game at the Pumpkin Show, with Pumpkin pies given away as prizes. Also, the parking lot behind Ankrum Lumber will again be operated by Sertoma Club members.
Next meeting of the group will be a joint meeting with the Kiwanis Club on Monday when they will tour DuPont.

Shots Fired

bond has been set.

The men were identified as Thomas Bratt, 47, and Lester Bratt, 49, both of East Liverpool; Ronald McGaffick, 28, and Mark Stone, 44, both of Rd. 4, Lisbon, and Robert Harris, 35, of Lisbon.

Deputies said they were trying to determine if the men are connected with the shooting incidents involving truckers in several Ohio counties.

Lawrence Willis, 35, of Scenery Hills, Pa., told the Highway Patrol one of his tires was flattened by a shot fired from a grassy area on U. S. 30, about eight miles north of East Liverpool in Columbiana County. He was driving a rig loaded with miscellaneous freight for the Suwak Trucking Co. of Washington, Pa.

Right behind was another Suwak truck driven by Charles Bails, 31, also of Washington, Pa. Bails said he saw flashes from the same area as he drove by and heard something hit the pavement under the truck.

Anthony Harvey of Youngstown was driving a rig for the Keystone Transportation Co. of Youngstown and said his truck was shot at but not hit as he drove on Ohio 344 east of Leetonia in northern Columbiana County.

Another trucker, Charles L. Ball, 57, of Huntington, W. Va., said four tires were shot out by someone who came up behind him on Ohio 7 near Wellsville. Ball was hauling nickel on a flat bed trailer.

Joseph Redmond, driving for the Hume's Transport Co. of Steubenville, said six or seven shots were fired from an auto at his truck on Ohio 22 in Jefferson County. There was no damage.

Four tires were punctured on a truck driven by James E. Parson, 42, of Pittsburgh.

Parson said a car moved into the passing lane on Ohio 5 in Trumbull County and fired on his rig. The car then turned around and went back towards Warren, he told the Patrol.

Parsons, driving a truck owned by the Oyer Motor Transit Co. of Canton, drove on to a truck stop near the Ohio Turnpike. The Patrol said the shots went clean through the tires.

Lack of water was a problem elsewhere. The municipal filtering plant at Corpus was fouled by Gulf backup. The situation was the same along the coast, where some cities reported up to 85 per cent destruction.

Restoration of electrical power was days away, utility company spokesmen said.

Beulah kept her hurricane status for hours longer than expected. Once over land, most hurricanes quickly lose force.

She was centered 60 miles west of Corpus Christi at 5 a.m., when hurricane warnings finally were lowered.

Tragedy and the joy of a new childbirth were marked at Red Cross shelters in Alice. A little girl was born at 12:15 p.m. Wednesday in one shelter. The parents named her Beulah.

Already devastated were citrus and other crops in the Lower Rio Grande Valley which the state agriculture commissioner valued at $50 million. Entire towns along the lower coast remained isolated today.

Armed National Guardsmen patrolled Brownsville, Harlingen, San Benito and Port Isabel. A newsman who risked his life to view Beulah's devastation at Port Isabel put it this way: "The town looked as if there had been saturation bombing."

Communications were almost non-existent. Ham radio operators kept up a constant flow of information between Valley towns, whenever they had power for their transmitters.

Tornadoes writhed off in record numbers from Beulah, herself the third largest hurricane in recorded history. She was responsible for 30 confirmed twisters. There were unofficial reports of more than 50 sightings. One tornado hit tiny Burnet, Tex., some 250 miles to the north of Beulah's track.

Damage was heavy also in Matamoros, Mexico, across the border from Brownsville.

Beulah's eye never reached Corpus Christi but her force at this sparkling coastal resort, fishing and industrial metropolis still ranked her as the third worst for the city. Beulah's winds were clocked here by the Weather Bureau at 86 m.p.h. while a Corps of Engineers station caught gusts at 110 m.p.h.—34 m.p.h. faster than those of might Hurricane Carla in 1961.

Rains continued over a vast area today.

The Nueces River was flooding less than 40 miles north of Corpus Christi and salt water from the 7.7-foot tides forced the two water filtration stations serving this city's 200,000 population to shut down. Officials said water supplies on hand would last 24 hours.

State officials kept track of the storm and its effects from a complex in Austin called the Emergency Operating Center.

Hurricane....

Flooding plagued the southern half of Texas and threatened to be a major problem for days. The rains showed no signs of abating as Gulf of Mexico tides swept headlong up river beds and collided with flood waters from Beulah's rains.

In an unprecedented move the State Department announced through Texas officials at Austin that the United States and Mexico had declared a disaster area along the border Rio Grande.

"The U.S. Immigration service is to open the international border and it is to remain open until further notice," a Texas spokesman said.

Brownsville's sister city of Matamoros, Mexico, sustained heavy damage from Beulah, as did Reynosa, Mexico, just across the river from Edinburg, Tex.

The Coast Guard was dispatching three amphibious airplanes from Corpus Christi today to survey damage in the storm's main track.

Tornadoes dealt damage in the millions of dollars. A final accounting of the storm's monetary harm was days—or possibly weeks—away.

Electrical power was shut off to about one-fourth of the Texas land mass. Brownsville was the hardest hit city in the state. Beulah screamed ashore there with 160 m.p.h. winds and rains too heavy to measure.

Hurricane force winds continued at Alice, a city of 23,000 some 40 miles west of Corpus Christi. Downtown businesses were flooded as were most homes. The residents had fled inland or to shelters.

Lack of water was a problem elsewhere. The municipal filtering plant at Corpus was fouled by Gulf backup. The situation was the same along the coast, where some cities reported up to 85 per cent destruction.

Restoration of electrical power was days away, utility company spokesmen said.

The center stressed time and again that evacuees should not try to return to their homes yet.

Brownsville and the area just up the coast from it were the hardest hit. State police found "il commercial buildings" suffered damage from major structural failure on down. Residents of lower areas waited to return to flooded homes, nearly all modest to poor housing. There was no doubt that many would be homeless.

Much of Beulah's track was over rangeland of the famed King Ranch and other cattle spreads in the flat salt grass country. Livestock losses were expected to run into millions of dollars.

Judging from the massive damage on the coast, the multi-million dollar tourist facilities along Padre Island must have sustained a devastating blow. The island, a favorite sun, fishing and vacation resort, runs the 160 miles from Brownsville to Corpus Christi, putting it in or near the northeast quadrant of Beulah's trek for almost its entire length.

The tornadoes claimed four lives. One man drowned between Victoria and Edna, Tex., when his car was swept away in a river.

Gordon Baxter of radio station KTRM in Beaumont and Mike Simpson of station KGBT-TV in Harlingen struggled to Port Isabel at the peak of the storm, Simpson's automobile was blown off the road twice.

"Telephone poles not only were knocked down—they were broken in two and three pieces," Baxter said. "One area was damaged so much you couldn't tell where the buildings were and where the street was supposed to be."

Refugees gathered as far inland as San Antonio.

Beulah's inland path brought the problem of poisonous snakes being flushed from their lairs into flooded fields and homes.

Corpus Christi officials warned residents to beware of reptiles when the time came to re-enter flooded homes.

Berger's Head Of Nursing Is Lecturer

Miss Margaret Goode, Berger Hospital's director of nursing, returned Wednesday from a series of lectures on "Nursing Care of the Stroke Patient" at Bluefield State College in West Virginia.

Miss Goode was guest speaker for the two-day program sponsored by the West Virginia Heart Assn. in cooperation with the West Virginia Nurses Assn. and Bureau of Heart Disease Control.

James Stambaugh, Berger administrator, noted today that it was quite an honor for the city-county hospital to have Miss Goode at the session.

Having served in the capacity of Director of Nursing at Berger since July 1, Miss Goode has a long list of credits in the area of caring for stroke patients. She recently had an article published in "Nursing Outlook," a national journal for the nursing profession.

Miss Goode, a native Pickaway Countian, holds three degrees in nursing. She is a graduate of St. Francis School of Nursing and has received her bachelor's and master's degrees in nursing from Ohio State University. She taught in the OSU School of Nursing for the past five years prior to accepting the position at Berger.

Accompanied by Mrs. William Neal R. N., Miss Goode is attending a three-day conference on obstetric, gynecologic and neonatal nursing in Indianapolis. They are expected to return here Sunday.

Mrs. Neal will be teaching an obstetrics refresher course for local nurses at the hospital. Fourteen have enrolled for the three-month course.

Auditor's Assistants Attend Conference
Mrs. Maxine Wilson and Mrs. Margaret Remy, both of the county auditor's office, attended the Southeastern Auditors Meeting in Logan Wednesday.

The 23 persons meeting discussed new bills passed by the state legislature that would effect their office.

The owner of the tailor shop maintained he had previously rented the quarters wanted by the picketers to a neighborhood group.

Safety Director Fred Simon said less than 40 persons caused the trouble but at one time more than 1,000 milled in the area about a mile from the heart of downtown Columbus.

A police wedge of 15 men, with bayonets fixed to riot shotguns, pushed the troublemakers step by step down the street from the center of the disturbance — a tailor shop on Mount Vernon Avenue.

Later police, cordoning the area, were showered with bottles and rocks thrown from darkness just beyond the street lights.

Twenty-three Negroes were arrested.

Mayor M.E. Sensenbrenner accused a "bunch of punks" of starting the trouble.

"Decent citizens concerned with their rights were not involved," he said.

Windows in at least 20 establishments were smashed. Owners boarded up the fronts after the violence subsided. Only minor looting was reported.

Several trash fires were started in the street. Later firebombs were thrown into a sporting goods store and a camera shop a mile from the trouble scene. Both fized and went out before they caused serious damage.

A man who identified himself as Ed Boston of New York, a field secretary for CORE, said his group plans to picket and boycott the tailoring shop until the owner rents a store-room he owns across the street.

The Johnson bill would bar interstate mail-order firearms sales, along with over-the-counter handgun sales to out-of-state purchasers. It also would bar importation of military surplus handguns and required licensing of all firearms dealers, importers and manufacturers.

Three Americans were wounded, a number of South Vietnamese troops were hit and some short rounds fell into a nearby village, killing two civilians and wounding 10.

The foul weather which hampered the attack on Red guns near the border, a forerunner of the northeast monsoon season due in two or three weeks, limited the air war on North Vietnam to 91 missions Wednesday. All were in the southern panhandle between Hanoi and the border.

In South Vietnamese politics, the U.S. Embassy in Saigon has received a letter from four defeated South Vietnamese presidential candidates demanding that "the U.S. government stop intervening in Vietnamese internal affairs."

Lawyer Truong Dinh Dzu, who ran second in the election, Assembly Chairman Phan Khac Suu, who ran third, and also-rans Nguyen Hoa Hiep and Vu Hong Khanh signed the letter to Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker. Bunker did not comment immediately.

The letter claimed that the United States had intervened "with the aim of legitimizing the rigged and undemocratic Sept. 3 election. It apparently referred to the 22 election observers sent by President Johnson and to statements by Bunker that the election was run "fairly and freely."

From the Amanda area were Hazel Thomas and Delores Fraunfelder, from Circleville Kittie Mead,

Laura Rector, Robert Denman and Garnet Reichelderfer. Arlene Fortner and Candy Miller attended the Friday evening and Saturday sessions and attending the installation of Grand Temple Officers on Saturday afternoon were Frank Baum and Mary Lee, Connie Morrison, Mr. Grant Thomas and Mrs. Jessie Fraunfelder and son, Francile Peters, Past Grand Chief, served as the installing officer on Saturday afternoon and Mona Morrison was the soloist for the affair.

Marie Woesner of Bowling Green was installed as the Grand Chief for the coming year. Others installed were Madge Baum as District Deputy S. Grand Junior and Garnet Reichelderfer as Grand Outer Guard. Miss Mead and Mrs. Morrison served as delegates at the convention for their Temples.

How to make taxpayers' money provide a maximum amount of quality education is the underlying issue in meeting the new militancy spreading among the nation's teachers.

A board of education "must give due weight to the competing and conflicting demands among a variety of critical priorities," as Alfred A. Giardino, president of New York City's board, observed.

Beyond doubt the ability and morale of its teachers and other professional personnel are the most significant factors in a school system's excellence. To attract and retain the competent a system must offer adequate rewards—both in money and in opportunities for doing a good job.

Teachers have made great financial gains in recent years, their average salary across the nation rising by 4 to 5 per cent annually, with a result that some get as much as $13,000 a year. The national mean maximum in big systems last year was $9,777.

But teachers assert concern also for conditions in the classroom. They demand adequate supplies, moderate-sized classes, a minimum of diversion for administrative red tape, greater assistance for dealing with unruly pupils, and more time during the school day for administrative red tape, greater assistance for preparation of lessons and grading of papers.

These corollary requirements are important, but they cost money too. Reducing class sizes, for instance, means hiring more teachers and building more rooms. This brings not only more expense but a risk of having to settle for less than qualified persons, since schools are already unable to get all the competent people they need.

There is danger, unfortunately, that the conflict will worsen as the American Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO) and the older National Education Association step up their competition. In such a power struggle, the need for balancing all the "critical priorities" may get lost, and the public and its children will be the victims.

Speaking of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

My husband has just entered the hospital because they suspect he has Addison's Disease. If he should have it, will this affect his health forever?

Mrs. D. O., Ohio

Dear Mrs. O.: I did not print the rest of your letter because it was filled with a vast series of questions, the answers to which you rightfully were concerned about. I will discuss some of them when I later write a column about Addison's Disease. But at this very moment I am interested in the fact that though your husband was admitted to the hospital for study, your concern is already unrestrained about a disease that he has not yet been shown to have.

If and when the diagnosis of Addison's Disease is definitely established, your doctor will tell you much about this condition and its control.

Addison's Disease, named after the doctor who described the condition, is due to a degenerative change of the adrenal gland which is attached to the kidney.

There is probably no more complex system in all the body than the relationship of the cortisone products of the adrenal gland and the chemical balance of the body. Disturbances of mineral balance, water excretion and changes of the blood pressure are only a few of the results of this complicated condition.

The symptoms of Addison's Disease are so bizarre and so varied that almost every reader could find a symptom that he could identify with and be frightened about if I named them.

The most important contribution that I can make to you is to let you know that Addison's Disease is no longer considered to be the fatal disease it was 25 years ago. With hydrocortisone many patients with Addison's Disease can now be kept in control and can expect to live healthy, almost completely normal lives.

My teen-age daughter has developed an uncontrollable appetite. She is enormously overweight and knows no limits to the amount of food she can consume. Can a medical condition cause this?

Mrs. S. A., Illinois

Dear Mrs. A.: Occasionally, a young adolescent may develop a ravenous, uncontrolled appetite. This condition is sometimes known as bulimia, or uncontrolled gluttonous appetite. It is sometimes insatiable. There rarely are underlying medical reasons for this condition. Most of the causes for such compulsive eating are of psychological origin. These must be uncovered with great patience and understanding by you. If she is pressured too much it will only increase her need for oral gratification.

You will find that your daughter will reach a point at which her need for indulging herself will stop. Then, with guidance—not by you, but by a psychologist and by her own doctor—she will curb her appetite and begin to lose weight.

The adolescent in this situation is an unhappy one. She must become "ready" to stop eating and to lose weight. This will happen with psychological help, but first be sure that she has no medical problem that needs treatment.

Routine X-rays of the teeth are never a radiation hazard. Trust your dentist's good judgment.

Farmers To Get Higher Prices On Feeder Calves

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Higher prices should be received by Ohio farmers for their feeder calves this fall than were current in 1966, an agricultural specialist at Ohio State University said today.

Dr. Paul R. Thomas, extension specialist in livestock marketing, said prices will be higher this fall because of three reasons—favorable range conditions in Western United States may encourage cow-calf producers to keep the feeders on grass; the supply of feeder calves this fall is slightly lower than in 1966, and expectations of lower feed-grain prices will result in cattle feeders feeding corn to both hog and cattle.

Last year's feeder calf sale average for steers was $29.11 per hundredweight; heifers averaged $34.99 per hundredweight.

Currently, prices for the same weight and grade of feeder steers are running about $1 per hundredweight higher than last year's prices.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just a little over 22 years ago the United Nations was born in San Francisco. For a moment, with the anguish of the big war ending, it seemed this might be the beginning of a new world.

Capitalists and Communists cheered and old animosities were almost invisible, for a while.

Anyone who was there had lived through the years of war, worse than anything in history, and he knew mankind, if sensible enough, could forge out of the fires of agony a peaceful way of life.

The machinery for quiet settlement of disputes, both new and ancient, was the foundation stone of this new United Nations, its primary purpose.

Even so, anyone there with his wits about him and a knowledge of history had to be skeptical. He could hope man at last had learned to live intelligently but history told him it was unlikely.

He knew man was still primitive, as World War II had just demonstrated, which meant that if now the nations seemed eager to eliminate conflict it was only because they were exhausted. They needed time to catch their breath, like a professional fighter who is knocked flat on his back and then gets up off the floor again, shaking the fuzz out of his head, until he is ready to go again.

Nevertheless, as the delegates at San Francisco finished their work, the whole non-Fascist world tingled a bit at the thought that here at last man had a chance to change his ways.

The tingle didn't last long, and there wasn't much reason for it. At the very moment of birth distrust and suspicion were written into the U.N. charter when the United States and Soviet Union insisted upon reserving the power to veto each other.

The United Nations had 51 members starting out and has 122 now. But it is in debt perhaps as much as $60 million because not all the members will pay what they owe.

And it didn't end war, after all. In some cases it has helped, as in Korea. In some it has been helpless, as in Vietnam. It has been criticized on all sides.

French President Charles DeGaulle called it the "Leaning Tower of Babel." Nikita Khrushchev called it the tool of colonial powers. A critic in the United States described it as a "Communist-dominated rat's nest."

It can help, sometimes, smother war fires in small nations. But it can do nothing if the big ones, like the United States and Soviet Union want to perform.

Nothing shows better its dilapidated condition as the world's peacekeeper than what happened to it, and what it did, when the Arabs were ready to make war on Israel last June.

When U.N. troops, stationed a decade on Egyptian land as a buffer between Israel and Egypt, were told to "git" by Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser they were withdrawn in a hurry by U.N. Secretary-General U Thant.

The brief war followed. When the 22nd session of the U.N. General Assembly opened Tuesday the retiring president, Abdul Raham Pazhwak of Afghanistan, didn't waste time on illusions.

He told the delegates the past year "has been marked by increased tensions among nations and by a lamentable deterioration in the world situation." In many areas and on many levels, he said, "the psychology of force has swept the minds of men and nations."

Perhaps the United Nations' only hope is that if it can last long enough, although that may require centuries, nations eventually may become civilized enough to settle a dispute with tongues instead of tanks.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Sir:

This letter has one purpose and one purpose only and that is to take issue with Councilman Robert Turner's statement made at a recent Council meeting that not one person or organization has shown an interest in the purchase of the National Guard armory.

As many will recall, I have written in this column several times urging that the purchase be made. Mr. Turner knows this as well as he knows the following:

Back in the early spring when it was announced that the armory was to be sold, I wrote Congressman William Harsha asking him to use his influence in Washington to get the price reduced.

At the time of my writing Mr. Harsha, the armory was appraised at $85,000. As I explained in my letter, many people in Circleville were interested in finding a facility to use as a Y.M.C.A. building and a recreation center.

Within a few days I had an answer from Mr. Harsha stating that he had forwarded my letter to various agencies in Washington and that I would be hearing from him again as soon as he had something definite to offer.

At that point I turned the matter over to Robert Johnson who is one of those working with the Y.M.C.A. group.

As most of us know, the armory can now be purchased for $20,000 if used as a "Y" and in a recreation project.

As stated earlier in this letter, Councilman Turner knows of my efforts in Washington. Council President, Harold Clifton, also knows of them and has some of my letters of correspondence with Congressman Harsha.

In a previous letter to The Herald I stated that the purchase of the armory became political football and was boot ed out of existence. That is still my contention.

And in closing I will add that Councilman Turner was simply talking through his hat in making the remark referred to at the outset of this letter.

Hamlet Dilemma

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Film producers in the new movie era are now facing a Hamlet-like dilemma: TV or not TV?

That is the question. Is it better to risk the slings and arrows of outraged moralists and make film that can never show on the home screen? Or to play it safe and produce movies that would face no unsurmountable problems with the vigilant network censors?

One company has met the issue by making a complete turnabout in programming. American-International soared to prosperity with cheaply made, innocuous movies that somehow appealed to the teen-age market: "I Was a Teen-Ag Frankenstein," "Beach Blanket Bingo," "How to Stuff a Wild Bikini," "The Raven," etc.

The head of American-International once explained that Frankie Avalon and Annette Funicello never even talked about sex in the company's movies. "We've got a great family audience for our pictures," he said, "and we don't want to jeopardize that."

But a couple of years ago, the A-I researchers discovered that the youngsters were bored by the antiseptic romances of Frankie and Annette. The kids wanted to be turned on.

Since then, A-I has come on strong with films about drag racing and motorcycle gangs. The product has grown more sexy and violent until A-I achieved its first condemnation from the Catholic film reviewing agency, Roger Corman's "The Trip," which depicted the LSD experiences of Peter Fonda, was assailed as pornography.

Unless moral standards alter radically in the next few years, "The Trip" will not be allowed on network television. But A-I is willing to gamble that the box office take from such sensational films will offset the loss of sale to television.

Nearly all of the film are made on limited budgets. The economic factors are plain: The average movie can earn at least $800,000 from network runs after it has played in theaters. This makes any family type film an almost surefire investment, provided it doesn't go too far over budget.

But a movie that can never play television lacks that $800,000 cushion and hence must be made economically.

Thus all major film deals are made with an eye to the television market, and this alarms some film makers. Producer-director Robert Aldrich is planning to film "The Killing of Sister George," based on the stage play that was a hit in London and so-so in New York. It concerns a pair of lesbians.

"Because of the subject matter, most film companies wouldn't touch it," says Aldrich. "They aren't interested in something that obviously could never play television."

"That worries me. I'm afraid that films will become more bland and less venturesome, because the companies are interested only in entertainment suitable for family consumption."

Those who share Aldrich's alarm are not encouraged by the entrance into feature filmmaking of the networks themselves. CBS is embarking on a large-scale program of theatrical films, later to be shown on television, and has signed Doris Day as its first star. ABC is starting its own productions with a movie to star Sidney Poitier.

NBC recently financed a Bob Hope movie and has presented several two-hour "world premiere" movies. The lack of daring and originality in the latter causes some critics to despair of the influence of television money on film making.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — A showing of 100 new technical products here this week revealed that 26 of them were developed with the aid of federal funds, a figure that surprises few engineers but does, however, cause them concern.

In many areas of industry, aerospace especially the overwhelming percentage of research and development funds comes from the federal government. It is the biggest buyer and user of research and development this year, federal financing.

Of the $17 billion spent by industry on research and development is expected to account for close to $8.5 billion. Nearly 90 per cent of all aerospace research and development will be done with federal funds.

The concern, variously expressed but stated almost constantly, is that the nation's brain power might be steered into militaristic rather than peaceful pursuits, or that in accepting grants researchers may accept control as well.

Dr. Robert L. Hershey, a vice president of the Du Pont Co., which has had a share of government contracts, commented in a speech during the past year that the federal government is in an almost monopolistic position in sponsoring research and development.

Government programs apparently have more glamor, he said, and since these programs are concentrated in certain narrow areas, some of the very best young scientists also may be concentrating narrowly.

Money has a lot to do with it, as the recent showing of technical products revealed. The average cost of the products shown was $250,000 each. And it took an average of 27 months to perfect them.

Among the products: "the world's most powerful superconductive magnet," which stores enough energy to turn on 20,000 one hundred watt bulbs at once; a microfilm that contains 3,200 pages on a 4 by 6 inch film; a dummy that simulates the physiological responses of a human being.

A small company, operating without subsidy or contract, is unlikely to risk its funds and time, especially when practical commercial results are not assured by such products. It takes big money to make precise products.

This seems to have been borne out by results of the competition, sponsored by a publishing house. Not only were 26 per cent of the winners aided by government funds, but the biggest winners also were the richest.

General Electric had the most winners, with nine. It was followed by Varian Associates 5, Radio Corp. of America and Union Carbide 4, Lockheed Aircraft, Norton Co., Westinghouse and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration 3 each.

To say that the risk is great and the return sometimes small doesn't rule out the possibility of big winning from such research. Many profitable commercial products had their origins in federally sponsored research.

An Australian circus performer who swallows razor blades, bolts and nuts has just bet $22,400 he'll be able to consume a 2,601-pound auto in a four-year period. At that, some of those new 1968 models do look good enough to eat.

However, the auto the Australian plans to eat is a worn-out old junker. Let's hope he doesn't find it a bit stale. Anyway, it should put plenty of iron in his system.

If the motor-car muncher does win the bet, the $22,400 probably won't prove all profit. He may have to spend a lot of it for anti-indigestion pills.

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Hope, who seems to have discovered the fountain of enthusiasm along with the fountain of youth, returned to NBC Wednesday night to start his 30th year of broadcasting with one of those ragtag yet thoroughly enjoyable comedy shows in which he specializes.

Somewhat, with Hope's charm and sureness of touch, these shows are pulled together and turned out smoothly.

This season he will be around about once a month since he has been freed of the task of playing host on his weekly anthology series.

As could be anticipated, he went to work in his opening monologue on politics, scurrying around neatly from comment on George Hamilton's retirement from the White House scene to, of course, Shirley Temple's bid for public office—"with George Murphy as senator, Ronald Reagan as governor and Shirley Temple in Congress, do you realize that California is the only state whose politicians can make their own movies."

The comedy special, in a mild change of pace, was hung on a single theme—old time vaudeville. This gave Hope a chance to show some old film of the by-gone days, including some amusing shots of himself as a rising young comedian. More importantly, it gave him a chance to run through some old and pretty terrible comedy routines.

Phyllis Diller, in a costume and fright wig more bizarre than any she has worn to date, had an amusing routine about her shortcomings as a housewife; "I'm one of the few people who ever had a grease fire—in her sink."

Jack Jones sang in his pleasant voice and then he and Hope played the parts of Jimmy Durante's partners in a nostalgic sketch. Durante was very effective in his rendition of "The September Song."

There is a new national Nielsen report—a survey of night audiences made on a quick weekly basis from viewing choices of a 580-home sample. It will supplement but not replace the important bi-weekly National Nielsen ratings report and is called "The Fast" in the trade.

The report for the period between Sept. 4 and Sept. 10—when CBS and ABC were presenting most of their new shows for the season and NBC had only one night of premieres—showed that "The Miss America Pageant" was watched by viewers in more than 20 million homes, about 37 per cent of the national total. It topped the list in popularity.

"High Chaparral," also on NBC was a special two-hour show broadcast as a pre-season special, and was second in popularity.

Generally, the public was busily looking over the new CBS and ABC product since CBS' "He and She," NBC's "The Mothers-in-law" and ABC's "Second Hundred Years" and "The Flying Nun"—all, significantly, comedies, made the top 10 list.

The survey, however, is not considered too significant in terms of a show's success or failure since it was made at a time when viewers are on their annual dial-twisting binge.

How to make taxpayers' money provide a maximum amount of quality education is the underlying issue in meeting the new militancy spreading among the nation's teachers.

A board of education "must give due weight to the competing and conflicting demands among a variety of critical priorities," as Alfred A. Giardino, president of New York City's board, observed.

Beyond doubt the ability and morale of its teachers and other professional personnel are the most significant factors in a school system's excellence. To attract and retain the competent a system must offer adequate rewards—both in money and in opportunities for doing a good job.

Teachers have made great financial gains in recent years, their average salary across the nation rising by 4 to 5 per cent annually, with a result that some get as much as $13,000 a year. The national mean maximum in big systems last year was $9,777.

But teachers assert concern also for conditions in the classroom. They demand adequate supplies, moderate-sized classes, a minimum of diversion for administrative red tape, greater assistance for dealing with unruly pupils, and more time during the school day for administrative red tape, greater as for preparation of lessons and grading of papers.

These corollary requirements are important, but they cost money too. Reducing class sizes, for instance, means hiring more teachers and building more rooms. This brings not only more expense but a risk of having to settle for less than qualified persons, since schools are already unable to get all the competent people they need.

There is danger, unfortunately, that the conflict will worsen as the American Federation of Teachers (AFL-CIO) and the older National Education Association step up their competition. In such a power struggle, the need for balancing all the "critical priorities" may get lost, and the public and its children will be the victims.

On the desk in TV star Dick Van Dyke's study is a plaque which reads, "I AM THIRD." It means, explains Van Dyke, "God is first, others second, myself last." It might be a good idea to send similar plaques to some of the worthy congressmen in Washington.

QUICKIES: Woody Allen sent his wife an unusual birthday present: a threatening letter.

A garage mechanic called to a lady motorist from under her car. "There's a short circuit in your ignition." "Well, don't just lie there," she admonished him. "Lengthen it!"

Speaking of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

My husband has just entered the hospital because they suspect he has Addison's Disease. If he should have it, will this affect his health forever?

Mrs. D. O., Ohio Dear Mrs. O.: I did not print the rest of your letter because it was filled with a vast series of questions, the answers to which you rightfully were concerned about. I will discuss some of them when I later write a column about Addison's Disease. But at this very moment I am interested in the fact that though your husband was admitted to the hospital for study, your concern is already unrelaxed about a disease that has not yet been shown to have.

If and when the diagnosis of Addison's Disease is definitely established, your doctor will tell you much about this condition and its control.

Addison's Disease, named after the doctor who described the condition, is due to a degenerative change of the adrenal gland which is attached to the kidney.

There is probably no more complex system in all the body than the relationship of the cortisone products of the adrenal gland and the chemical balance of the body. Disturbances of mineral balance, water excretion and changes of the blood pressure are only a few of the results of this complicated condition.

The symptoms of Addison's Disease are so bizarre and so varied that almost every reader could find a symptom that he could identify with if I named them.

The most important contribution that I can make to you is to let you know that Addison's Disease is no longer considered to be the fatal disease it was 25 years ago. With hydrocortisone many patients with Addison's Disease can now be kept in control and can expect to live healthy, almost completely normal lives.

My teen-age daughter has developed an uncontrollable appetite. She is enormously overweight and knows no limits to the amount of food she can consume. Can a medical condition cause this?

Mrs. S. A., Illinois Dear Mrs. A.: Occasionally, a young adolescent may develop a ravenous, uncontrolled appetite. This condition is some-

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just a little over 22 years ago the United Nations was born in San Francisco. For a moment, with the anguish of the big war ending, it seemed this might be the beginning of a new world.

Capitalists and Communists cheered and old animosities were almost invisible, for a while. Anyone who was there had lived through the years of war, worse than anything in history, and he knew mankind, if sensible enough, could forge out of the fires of agony a peaceful way of life.

The machinery for quiet settlement of disputes, both new and ancient, was the foundation stone of this new United Nations, its primary purpose. Even so, anyone there with his wits about him and a knowledge of history had to be skeptical. He could hope man at last had learned to live intelligently but history told him it was unlikely.

He knew man was still primitive, as World War II had just demonstrated, which meant that if now the nations seemed eager to eliminate conflict it was only because they were exhausted. They needed time to catch their breath, like a professional fighter who is knocked flat on his back and then gets up off the floor again, shaking the fuzz out of his head, until he is ready to go again. Nevertheless, as the delegates at San Francisco finished their work, the whole new-Fascist world tingled a bit at the thought that here at last man had a chance to change his ways.

The tangle didn't last long, and there wasn't much reason for it. At the very moment of birth distrust and suspicion were written into the U.N. charter when the United States and Soviet Union insisted upon reserving the power to veto each other.

The United Nations had 51 members starting out and has 122 now. But it is in debt perhaps as much as $60 million because not all the members will pay what they owe.

And it didn't end war, after all. In some cases it has helped, as in Korea. In some it has been helpless, as in Vietnam. It has been criticized on all sides.

French President Charles DeGaulle called it the "Loaning Tower of Babel." Nikita Khrushchev called it the tool of colonial powers. A critic in the United States described it as a "Communist-dominated rat's nest."

It can help, sometimes, smother war fires in small nations. But it can do nothing if the big ones, like the United States and Soviet Union want to perform.

Nothing shows better its dilapidated condition as the world's peacekeeper than what happened to it, and what it did, when the Arabs were ready to make war on Israel last June.

When U.N. troops, stationed a decade on Egyptian land as a buffer between Israel and Egypt, were told to "git" by Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser they were withdrawn in a hurry by U.N. Secretary-General U Thant.

The brief war followed. When the 22nd session of the U.N. General Assembly opened Tuesday the retiring president, Abdul Raham Pazhwak of Afghanistan, didn't waste time on illusions.

He told the delegates the past year "has been marked by increased tensions among nations and by a lamentable deterioration in the world situation."

In many areas and on many levels, he said, "the psychology of force has swept the minds of men and nations."

Perhaps the United Nations' only hope is that if it can last long enough, although that may require centuries, nations eventually may become civilized enough to settle a dispute with tongues instead of tanks.

Hamlet Dilemma

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Film producers in the new movie era are now facing a Hamlet-like dilemma: TV or not TV?

That is the question. Is it better to risk the slings and arrows of outraged moralist and make film that can never show on the home screen? Or to play it safe and produce movies that would face no unsurmountable problems with the vigilant network censors?

One company has met the issue by making a complete turnabout in programming. American-International soared to prosperity with cheaply made, innocuous movies that somehow appealed to the teenage market: "I Was a Teen-Ag Frankenstein," "Beach Blanket Bingo," "How to Stuff a Wild Bikini," "The Raven," etc.

The head of American-International once explained that Frankie Avalon and Annette Funicello never even talked about sex in the company's movies. "We've got a great family audience for our pictures," he said, "and we don't want to jeopardize that."

But a couple of years ago, the A-I researchers discovered that the youngsters were bored by the antiseptic romances of Frankie and Annette. The kids wanted to be turned on.

Since then, A-I has come on strong with films about drag racing and motorcycle gangs. The product has grown more sexy and violent until A-I achieved its first condemnation from the Catholic film review agency. Roger Corman's "The Trip," which depicted the LSD experiences of Peter Fonda, was assailed as pornographic.

Unless moral standards alter radically in the next few years, "The Trip" will not be allowed on network television. But A-I is willing to gamble that the box office take from such sensational films will offset the loss of sale to television. Nearly all of the film are made on limited budgets. The economic factors are plain: The average movie can earn at least $800,000 from network runs after it has played in theaters. This makes any family type film an almost surefire investment, provided it doesn't go too far over budget.

But a movie that can never play television lacks that $800,000 cushion and hence must be made economically.

Thus all major film deals are made with an eye to the television market, and this alarms some film makers. Producer-director Robert Aldrich is planning to film "The Killing of Sister George," based on the stage play that

Lagos Forces In Rebel City

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN
LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Nigerian federal troops occupied today the capital of the Republic of Benin, a day-old, self-proclaimed nation that rebelled Wednesday to fight the Lagos government alongside breakaway Biafra.

Lagos forces, greeted by crowds waving palm fronds, entered Benin City and seized a main square, a British government report from the scene said. Firing was heard east of the capital area.

The federal government's advance came only 12 hours after Benin's declaration of independence and was regarded as a major victory in its 10-week old civil war with Biafra, the rebellious Eastern state, and the Midwest.

Biafrans took the Midwest region in August and installed Maj. Albert O. Okonkwo, a U.S.-trained physician married to an American, as administrator. Okonkwo issued Benin's independence statement, then disappeared from sight Wednesday.

Okonkwo had earlier accused the military government of Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon in Lagos of trying to "impose an unacceptable type of government on our people."

But George Bell, British high commissioner in Benin, reported that crowds cheered the federal contingent as it reached King's Square in the heart of the city. No British or foreign nationals were hurt, he said.

Friction among the nation's major tribal groups lay at the bottom of the Biafra and Benin rebellions. Thousands of Ibo tribesmen living in the Hausa-controlled North were slain in months of upheavals last year and Ibo leaders in the East—the Biafran region—charged unfair treatment by Lagos. The Midwest has 500,000 Ibos.

Red Chinese Say U.S. 'Panicked'

TOKYO (AP) — Saying that the United States has panicked, Red China today ridiculed American plans to build a $5 billion antimissile defense against a possible nuclear attack by the Chinese in the 1970s.

"In the past when China had no nuclear weapons, it did not submit to the United States or the Soviet nuclear big stick," said the official New China News Agency. "Much less will the Chinese people be cowed by an intimidation or blackmail now that they have their own nuclear weapons."

Court Orders New Trial For Jemison

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—In an unusual decision from the bench, the Ohio Supreme Court has decided to review the case of Richard H. Jemison, whose first-degree murder conviction was overruled by the Franklin County Court of Appeals.

The appellate court ruled that Jemison is entitled to a new trial because no sanity hearing was held and because police were guilty of illegal search and seizure.

A county criminal court found Jemison guilty of the May 10, 1965 slayings of his wife, Virginia, at their home here, and her employer, John Lyman, a pharmacist in a Broad and High streets drug store.

The high court, hearing arguments from Franklin County Prosecutor C. Howard Johnson was presenting arguments to the court on the state's appeal when Chief Justice Kingsley A. Taft interrupted and said the court would review the case. This means that there will be a full hearing before the court.

Johnson told the court he felt the appellate court erred in its ruling because Jemison and his attorneys had waived a sanity hearing before the trial.

Steel Merger Is Approved

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — Bethlehem Steel Corp., the nation's second largest steel producer, and Cerro Corp., a New York-based mining firm, today announced they have agreed to merge.

The announcement was made jointly by Robert P. Koenig, Cerro president, and Edmund F. Martin, Bethlehem president.

Earlier today the steel firm and Rheem Manufacturing Co. of New York said they had broken off merger talks. Rheem makes steel cylinders and heating equipment.

Under the proposed consolidation, Cerro would receive one share of a new Bethlehem convertible preferred stock for each share of Cerro Common.

Terms of the new Bethlehem stock issue have not yet been worked out, the announcement said, but it would be non-callable for five years and would have an annual dividend rate of $2.80 a share and would be converted into Bethlehem Common at a rate of 1.33 shares of Bethlehem Common for each preferred share.

Under the merger—subject to stockholders approval — Cerro would be operated under its present management as a subsidiary of Bethlehem with Koenig as president.

Based on the current price of 37½ for Bethlehem Common and the conversion of the stock to be issued for Cerro into Bethlehem Common stock, the transaction is worth more than $330 million.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

This Guy's Not Marrying Kind

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to a guy who can't seem to make up his mind whether he wants to get married.

We have had FOUR blood tests (you can't get married in this state without one) and every time we do to get married he changes his mind and we put it off. I am 22 and he is 21, but I don't think he's ready to settle down yet.

We both work, so money isn't the problem.

We have gone together off and on since high school, so we know each other pretty well. He says he loves me and I know I love him. Have you any advice for me?

NEEDING ADVICE

DEAR NEEDING: Yes. Give your blood to the Red Cross and find another guy. He's not ready.

DEAR ABBY: Not long ago, I wrote you a letter, telling about my miserable homelife. I said my mother was a tramp and my father would get drunk and beat me for no reason at all. Then I told you that I turned to my boy friend for the love I needed and he got me pregnant, and I was considering suicide. I gave you my name and address begging you to hurry your answer.

Well, I just received the most wonderful letter from you, Abby. You gave me some good advice, with hope and encouragement for the future. And you sent me the name of a home for unwed mothers nearby where I could go for Bowling Stock Yards.

Mrs. Foster Jenne announced that Ned Rader will be the new choir director and encouraged interested persons to attend practice.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

This Guy's Not Marrying Kind

DEAR ABBY: I am engaged to a guy who can't seem to make up his mind whether he wants to get married.

We have had FOUR blood tests (you can't get married in this state without one) and every time we do to get married he changes his mind and we put it off. I am 22 and he is 21, but I don't think he's ready to settle down yet.

We both work, so money isn't the problem.

We have gone together off and on since high school, so we know each other pretty well. He says he loves me and I know I love him. Have you any advice for me?

NEEDING ADVICE
DEAR NEEDING: Yes. Give your blood to the Red Cross and find another guy. He's not ready.

DEAR ABBY: Not long ago, I wrote you a letter, telling about my miserable homelife. I said my mother was a tramp and my father would get drunk and beat me for no reason at all. Then I told you that I turned to my boy friend for the love I needed and he got me pregnant, and I was considering suicide. I gave you my name and address begging you to hurry your answer.

Well, I just received the most wonderful letter from you, Abby. You gave me some good advice, with hope and encouragement for the future. And you sent me the name of a home for unwed mothers nearby where I could go for help. Then you closed with "Good luck, Dear, and God bless you."

Well, Abby, my letter was a bunch of made up lies. I have a good homelife and I don't even have a steady boy friend and I surely am not pregnant.

I feel so sorry for what I did. Please forgive me. I promise never to do a thing like that again.

ASHAMED
DEAR ASHAMED: I can usually spot a phony letter, but when a girl is "in trouble" I take no chances and answer accordingly. Some of the wildest situations are "real." You're forgiven, but if you have the urge to do any more "creative writing," please spare me.

DEAR ABBY: Everywhere you turn you hear about sex, which is the most overrated thing in the world, if you ask me.

I have been married for 24 years with practically no sex. He doesn't bother me and I don't bother him.

I was considered quite a doll in my day, and I haven't changed much. Blonde, 5 ft. 5, weight 115. Yes, we have children. Three of them. (And I had a job talking my husband into it). I have a full length mink coat, a leopard jacket and a mink stole. My husband is a professional man, well liked and handsome. Looks sexy, but looks can fool you.

I play a good game of bridge and consistently break 90 in golf. I keep busy, and enjoy life and if I'm neurotic, frustrated or heading for a nervous breakdown I haven't seen any signs of it yet. Nobody knows what I'm missing but me.

Community Fund in Action

YMCA Joins Community Fund

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is one of a series of articles designed to acquaint residents of Pickaway County with the functions of Community Fund participating agencies. The campaign this year will be conducted Sept. 25 to Oct. 9. The goal is $50,000.

The YMCA became an agency of the community fund for the first time this year. It will begin service this fall by providing family type activities to Pickaway Counties.

The physical education programs will be organized and function in local facilities. Swimming will be handled at YMCAs in nearby communities.

Night classes and social programs will evolve through local interest and take place at available meeting places.

Two programs are now underway in the county. The Hi-Y program, designed for high school students, has been active for several years. A junior high school Hi-Y is now being formed.

THE Y-Indian Guides, started last year, is a program designed to bring fathers and sons together in various activities. Neither the father nor the son may attend meetings without the other. Tribes are formed with six to nine fathers and their sons.

Last week the local Shawnee tribe camped at the YMCA Camp Wilson near Bellefontaine.

The local "Y" will operate as a branch of the Columbus "Y" for the immediate future. After months of careful consideration it was felt that this connection provided many advantages and no disadvantages.

The "Y" secretary is responsible for all phases of the organizations activities, and is directed by a group of 25 local men and women who set policy and direction.

The estimated budget for the first year is $15,000. The "Y" has asked the Community Fund for $4,000 for 1968. The remainder of the finances will come from membership fees.

The future of the "Y" program looks strong. With community support it will grow, and add new facilities and activities in the years ahead.

Berger Plans Vocational Encouragement Program

Berger Hospital's Board of Governors made plans for a vocational guidance meeting to encourage vocations in the field of medicine during their regular monthly meeting Wednesday night.

Spearheading the discussion was James Stambaugh, Berger administrator. Board members gave Stambaugh permission to proceed with the program.

The hospital head said that the first effort would be to invite a vocational adviser from each of the four high schools, along with the principals, to a meeting to discuss the career encouragement program.

The light agenda included discussion of laboratory services performed for the hospital by a Columbus firm.

DR. F. W. Anderson, board member, described the relationships with the Columbus firm as "deplorable." He also felt that bacteriology and other tests could be performed locally.

Dr. Julio Sanguily, chief of staff, commented that he was "annoyed with the poor service." He cited several examples. Dr. Sanguily suggested that a committee meet with laboratory officials in Columbus and express their feelings. If the local staff isn't satisfied with the outcome, Dr. Sanguily said, perhaps we'd better "find a pathologist" to do the work in Berger Hospital's lab which is in "need of expansion."

Both doctors felt that the time delay in using the Columbus laboratory could be improved upon.

Stambaugh informed the Board of Governors that R. G. Dawley, Route 1, had volunteered his services as an appraiser. Dawley, in a communication to the hospital, said he would donate his services for a complete appraisal of the hospital and its contents. He noted he had read that a proposal for the appraisal met with defeat due to the expense involved. His offer stemmed from care given his mother during a recent stay in the hospital.

Stambaugh also informed the board that the Circleville High School Key Club had volunteered members' services for a project at Berger. The administrator is to meet with club officers to plan a service project.

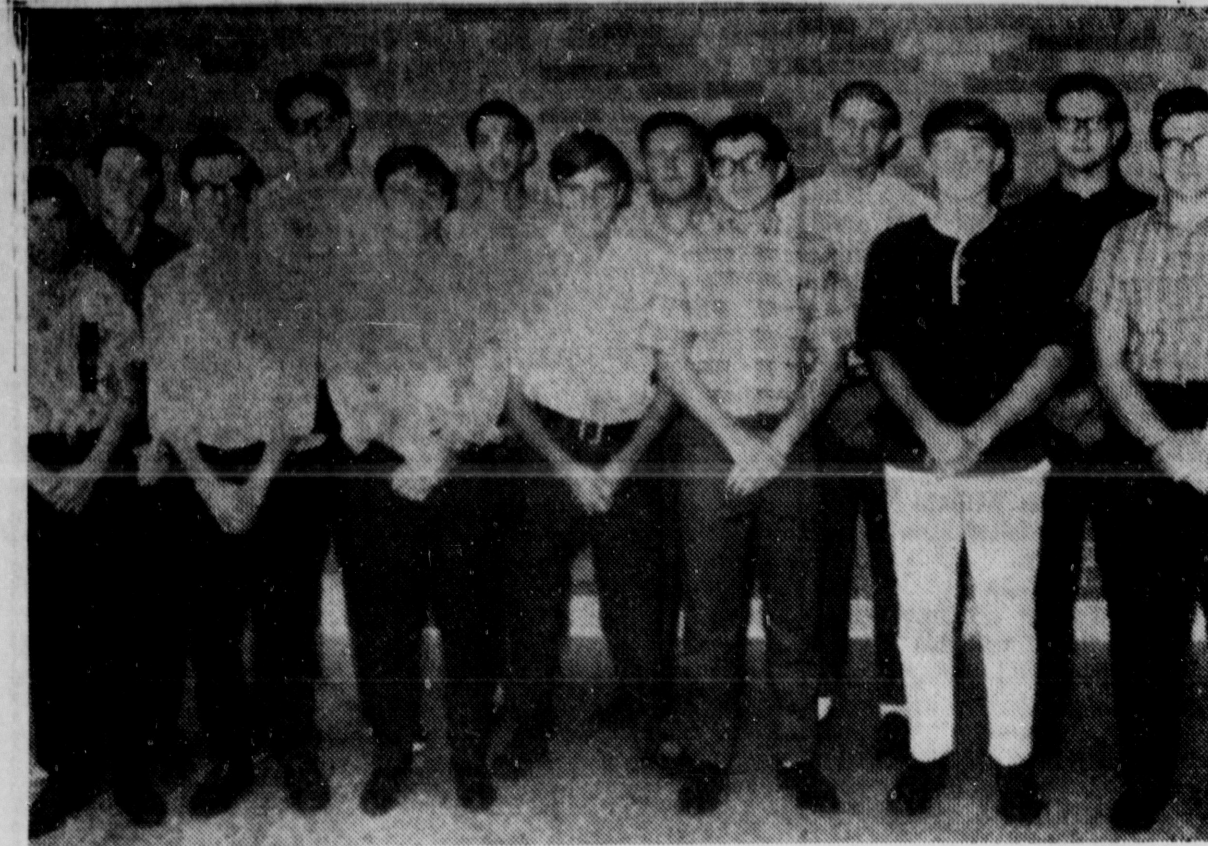

In other discussions, improvements in general at the hospital came under consideration. A study is to be made to decide priority.

Mt. Sterling Man Hurt in Wreck

Teddy Lee Prushing, 28, Mt. Sterling, was admitted to London General Hospital Wednesday afternoon for treatment of injuries sustained in a head-on automobile collision.

The accident occurred 12:50 p.m. yesterday on County Road 500 just north of Mt. Sterling. Tommy H. Cropper, 42, Columbus, was the operator of one of the vehicles. Prushing drove the other.

The two cars collided on a curve. Both cars were demolished.

Ford Strike Side Effects Ominous; Jobs Disappear

DETROIT (AP) — Economic side effects of the United Auto Workers strike against Ford Motor Co. are mounting, and the diagnosis is that they'll get much worse.

Already hundreds of jobs in supplier factories and in transportation have vanished, along with 160,000 in Ford plants across the country.

As the strike enters its third week today, industrial spokesmen say that henceforth for the walkout's duration layoffs elsewhere likely will be accelerated.

And there was a prediction Wednesday from Ken Bannon, chief of the union's Ford negotiating team, that the strike has at least six more weeks to run.

Bannon, expressing hope he was too pessimistic, estimated it will be another month "before the pieces start falling together" in negotiations of a new contract between Ford and the UAW. Then, he predicted it will take another two weeks to fit all the pieces together.

Ford was struck at midnight Sept. 6 as three-year contracts ran out there and at Chrysler and General Motors. The UAW chose Ford as its target, hoping to use whatever it wins there as the pattern for subsequent settlement at Chrysler and GM, in that order.

The UAW struck in support of what it calls its "longest and most ambitious list of demands" in history, and it was over economic issues, including a demand for guaranteed annual income the negotiations begun in July finally foundered.

Since the walkout, Ford and UAW negotiators have not returned to economic issues and are not expected to before next week, at the earliest.

While striking Ford, the union kept its members working without contracts in GM and Chrysler plants, which together employ almost 500,000.

The UAW international executive board gathered in Detroit today to recommend a strike-supporting increase in union dues paid by UAW members still working. A special convention of the union is set for Oct. 8 in Detroit to act on the recommendation.

Meanwhile workers in the 25-state Ford empire began collecting strike benefits ranging from $20 to $30 weekly, depending on family size, compared with what the company says was an average weekly gross paycheck of $155.83 last year.

Bannon, who is the UAW's Ford department director, was among those shifting to a strike benefit income status. Normally he makes $19,250 a year, but as a family man he draws the top strike benefit: $30 a week.

Industrialists say the pinch of the strike would have been greater already, but while ordering shipments held up, Ford has not yet notified suppliers to hold up on manufacture of components for 1968 models, which go on display in dealer showrooms Friday.

Vendors calling on Ford have dwindled, and some express amazement that Ford has not yet ordered a stop on previously placed orders.

Berger Plans Vocational Encouragement Program

Berger Hospital's Board of Governors made plans for a vocational guidance meeting to encourage vocations in the field of medicine during their regular monthly meeting Wednesday night.

Spearheading the discussion was James Stambaugh, Berger administrator. Board members gave Stambaugh permission to proceed with the program.

The hospital head said that the first effort would be to invite a vocational adviser from each of the four high schools, along with the principals, to a meeting to discuss the career encouragement program.

The light agenda included discussion of laboratory services performed for the hospital by a Columbus firm.

DR. F. W. Anderson, board member, described the relationship with the Columbus firm as "deplorable." He also felt that bacteriology and other tests could be performed locally.

Dr. Julio Sanguily, chief of staff, commented that he was "amused with the poor service." He cited several examples. Dr. Sanguily suggested that a committee meet with laboratory officials in Columbus and express their feelings. If the local staff isn't satisfied with the outcome, Dr. Sanguily said, perhaps we'd better "find a pathologist" to do the work in Berger Hospital's lab which is in "need of expansion."

Both doctors felt that the time delay in using the Columbus laboratory could be improved upon.

Stambaugh informed the Board of Governors that R. G. Dawley, Route 1, had volunteered his services as an appraiser. Dawley, in a communication to the hospital, said he would donate his services for a complete appraisal of the hospital and its contents. He noted he had read that a proposal for the appraisal met with defeat due to the expense involved. His offer stemmed from care given his mother during a recent stay in the hospital.

Stambaugh also informed the board that the Circleville High School Key Club had volunteered members' services for a project at Berger. The administrator is to meet with club officers to plan a service project.

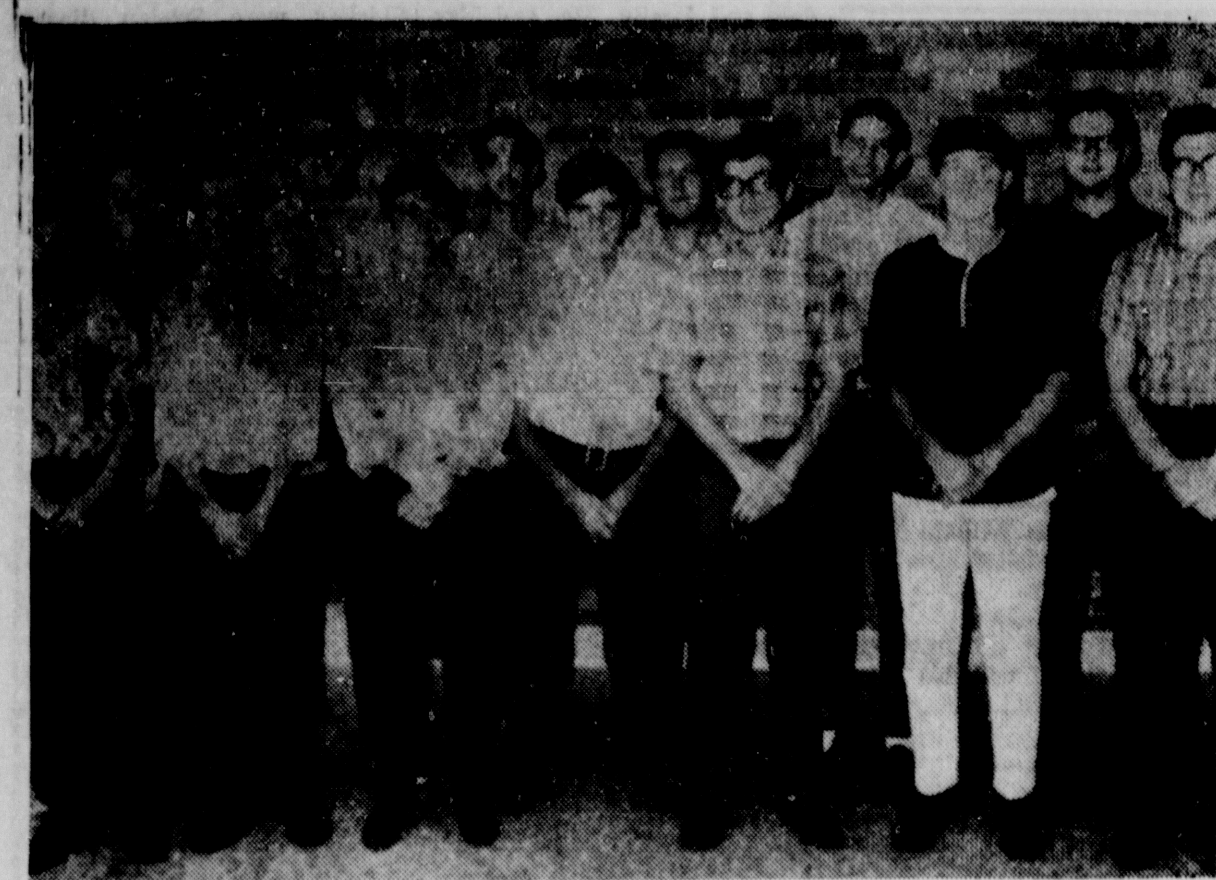

In other discussions, improvements in general at the hospital came under consideration. A study is to be made to decide priority.

Mt. Sterling Man Hurt in Wreck

Teddy Lee Prushing, 28, Mt. Sterling, was admitted to London General Hospital Wednesday afternoon for treatment of injuries sustained in a head-on automobile collision.

The accident occurred 12:50 p.m. yesterday on County Road 500 just north of Mt. Sterling. Tommy H. Cropper, 42, Columbus, was the operator of one of the vehicles. Prushing drove the other.

The two cars collided on a curve. Both cars were demolished.

Ford Strike Side Effects Ominous; Jobs Disappear

DETROIT (AP) — Economic side effects of the United Auto Workers strike against Ford Motor Co. are mounting, and the diagnosis is that they'll get much worse.

Already hundreds of jobs in supplier factories and in transportation have vanished, along with 160,000 in Ford plants across the country.

As the strike enters its third week today, industrial spokesmen say that henceforth for the walkout's duration layoffs elsewhere likely will be accelerated. And there was a prediction Wednesday from Ken Bannon, chief of the union's Ford negotiating team, that the strike has at least six more weeks to run.

Bannon, expressing hope he was too pessimistic, estimated it will be another month "before the pieces start falling together" in negotiations of a new contract between Ford and the UAW. Then, he predicted it will take another two weeks to fit all the pieces together.

Ford was struck at midnight Sept. 6 as three-year contracts ran out there and at Chrysler and General Motors. The UAW chose Ford as its target, hoping to use whatever it wins there as the pattern for subsequent settlement at Chrysler and GM, in that order.

The UAW struck in support of what it calls its "longest and most ambitious list of demands" in history, and it was over economic issues, including a demand for guaranteed annual income the negotiations begun in July finally foundered.

Since the walkout, Ford and UAW negotiators have not returned to economic issues and are not expected to before next week, at the earliest.

While striking Ford, the union kept its members working without contracts in GM and Chrysler plants, which together employ almost 500,000.

The UAW international executive board gathered in Detroit today to recommend a strike-supporting increase in union dues paid by UAW members still working. A special convention of the union is set for Oct. 8 in Detroit to act on the recommendation.

Meanwhile workers in the 25-state Ford empire began collecting strike benefits ranging from $20 to $30 weekly, depending on family size, compared with what the company says was an average weekly gross paycheck of $155.83 last year.

Bannon, who is the UAW's Ford department director, was among those shifting to a strike benefit income status. Normally he makes $19,250 a year, but as a family man he draws the top strike benefit: $30 a week.

Industrialists say the pinch of the strike would have been greater already, but while ordering shipments held up, Ford has not yet notified suppliers to hold up on manufacture of components for 1968 models, which go on display in dealer showrooms Friday.

Vendors calling on Ford have dwindled, and some express amazement that Ford has not yet ordered a stop on previously placed orders.

British Divers' Find Part of Sunken Treasure

LONDON (AP) — Divers have found a sunken blanket of gold and silver coins believed to be part of a $2.8-million treasure that disappeared into the Atlantic's grayness with three ships of Admiral Sir Cloudesley Shovell's Mediterranean fleet in 1707.

Fortune-hunters had been searching for it ever since. A private expedition, supported by a Royal Navy unit, hauled up 1,500 gold and silver guineas, crowns and pieces of eight Wednesday from about 100 feet of water off the Scilly Islands, some 25 miles from England's extreme southwestern tip.

"This is only a fraction of what is down there," a diver said.

The first coins discovered were English, French and Portuguese, none carrying a date later than 1707.

Diver Geoffrey Upton, 34, told of finding the treasure: "It was a very dark and uninviting hole. The only way to get through it was to take off my breathing set, push it through first and swim after it. It led to a deeper gully and suddenly I saw a carpet of silver coins stretching in front of me."

The hunt centered on the area where Shovell's flagship, The Association, and her sister ships, The Eagle and The Romney, dashed against rocks and sank.

Some naval historians have estimated the fleet carried bullion chests and plate worth a million pounds—$2.8 million—more.

Shovell's fleet was lost on its voyage home from a successful naval engagement with France off the coast of Spain.

Art Patrons Find Show 'Delicious'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The exhibit at the San Francisco Museum of Art Wednesday night was just a friendly protest, the contributing artists said.

For the audience, though, it was simply delicious.

The event was an exhibition of food sculpture—edible works of art shaped from everyday kitchen items.

In the corner stood a tall relief of a plump, nude woman titled "The Hostess, 1967." At her base, the guests gathered and chatted about the work as they scraped off her skin-colored, cream cheese-dip flesh and ate it with crackers.

A young hippie couple, mixing a free meal with their aesthetic pursuits, smiled at each other as they moved on to their entrance—a dog (or was it a raccoon?) sculptured with meat loaf and nuts.

The show was just a gag, said a San Francisco artist, Gordon Cook.

"We see it as a cheerful, friendly way of commenting on the gallery art scene. It seems like art today has become a commodity rather than an expression."

"So we thought we would

Dominican Peace Only Skin Deep; Real Stability Appears Far Off

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — U.S. military intervention in the Dominican Republic ended a year ago. The aftertaste of the enforced American presence has been diluted by time but probably never will disappear.

Also put aside but not forgotten are the varied causes of the April, 1965, civilian-military uprising that brought on the intervention, first by U.S. forces and later, under the name of inter-American peace force, by a small corps of Latin-American troops.

The violence that many feared would explode when the foreign troops left never attained the predicted proportions. For many here, the past year has been the most peaceful and promising in almost a decade. Still, real political stability seems years away in this Caribbean republic where democratic rule is getting its first prolonged trial since 1930.

The last of the American troops on Dominican soil, units of the 82nd Airborne Division, left Sept. 20, 1966. At peak strength, in mid-1965, U.S. forces numbered some 24,000 on land and about 8,000 in ships off-shore.

Although a newly elected government was in power, backed by the United States and the Organization of American States, there were widespread fears that evacuation of the American troops would bring on a renewal of fighting between factions involved in the revolt. The result was a series of vendetta-type clashes and acts of terrorism that reached a climax late April.

Things have quieted since then, but there are authenticated reports of arbitrary arrests and detentions of the political opposition, chiefly the Dominican Revolutionary party—PRD—and by army guards in rural areas. The Dominican army is known to regard the PRD and its self-exiled leader, Juan Bosch, as its deadliest enemy. Because of harassment, the PRD is threatening to pull out of important 1968 municipal elections.

The continuance of military pressure on the PRD, despite President Joaquin Balaguer's repeated assurances to party chiefs, is one of many signs that while the armed forces solidly support the president he has a limited control over them. As a result of the brush with disaster during the revolt, the army has been thoroughly reorganized and re-equipped with substantial U.S. help. Many Dominicans say the armed forces still lack the material to make it a professional, a political military institution. This, they add, is the real problem.

Four Israelis Killed in Suez Fighting

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli and Egyptian tank and artillery units battled across the Suez Canal for the second straight day today and four Israelis were killed and six wounded in the fighting, an army spokesman said.

The skirmish at El Qantara in the canal's northern sector brought the heaviest Israeli casualties since a fierce cross-canal exchange July 14 that left seven Israelis dead and 22 wounded.

The Egyptians scored a direct hit on an Israeli bunker, injuring several soldiers, the spokesman said. Israeli gunners claimed strikes on two Egyptian tanks, but it was not known if they were destroyed.

The battle began at 7:55 a.m. local time when the Egyptians opened up with small arms and machine guns, gradually intensifying their barrage to recoilless rifles, tanks and heavy artillery, the spokesman said.

Israelis returned the fire. U.N. observers requested a cease-fire and the Israelis agreed to it about an hour after the firing began. But a few minutes later, the army spokesman said, Egyptians began firing again with light arms and the Israelis shot back.

Israeli forces claimed Wednesday they sank three Egyptian motor boats in two separate incidents at Port Taufiq at the southern end of the canal.

They charged that Egyptians sent boats with armed troops into canal water thereby breaking the U.N.-sponsored agreement whereby both Israel and Egypt promised to refrain from boats in the canal.

Trunk Yields Bodies of 3 Infants

NEW YORK (AP) — An old trunk found in the basement of a Manhattan apartment house has yielded the bodies of three mummified infants, one of whom may have been dead for 47 years.

The bizarre and unusual case came to light when the trunk was opened Wednesday night. Dr. Paul Herman, assistant medical examiner, set an autopsy examination of the infants today to determine how they died.

The discovery was made when John Hartnett, superintendent of the building on West 181st Street in the Washington Heights section advised tenants to clear a basement storage area of unwanted items.

Hartnett told police he found one trunk with the name Anne Solomon on it. It was opened in the presence of Jacob Solomon, 67, whose wife Anne died in 1924 at the age of 48.

Inside the children were found laying side by side—swaddled in cloth and with newspapers wrapped on the outside. Dr. Herman described the bodies as "well kept."

One of the papers was an edition of the defunct Evening Sun dated Jan. 20, 1920. Another was the defunct Evening World dated March 4, 1922 and the third was the old Evening Journal of Oct. 17, 1922.

Solomon told police his wife had been previously married in 1933 but that he had no knowledge of her having given birth to any children.

make these things—and some of them are really rather beautiful—then eat them up. It seems appropriate," Cook explained.

LONDON (AP) — Divers have found a sunken blanket of gold and silver coins believed to be part of a $2.8-million treasure that disappeared into the Atlantic's grayness with three ships of Admiral Sir Cloudesley Shovell's Mediterranean fleet in 1707.

Fortune-hunters had been searching for it ever since.

A private expedition, supported by a Royal Navy unit, hauled up 1,500 gold and silver guineas, crowns and pieces of eight Wednesday from about 100 feet of water off the Scilly Islands, some 25 miles from England's extreme southwestern tip.

"This is only a fraction of what is down there," a diver said.

The first coins discovered were English, French and Portuguese, none carrying a date later than 1707.

Diver Geoffrey Upton, 34, told of finding the treasure: "It was a very dark and uninviting hole. The only way to get through it was to take off my breathing set, push it through first and swim after it. It led to a deeper gully and suddenly I saw a carpet of silver coins stretching in front of me."

The hunt centered on the area where Shovell's flagship, The Association, and her sister ships, The Eagle and The Romney, dashed against rocks and sank.

Some naval historians have estimated the fleet carried bullion chests and plate worth a million pounds—$2.8 million—or more.

Shovell's fleet was lost on its voyage home from a successful naval engagement with France off the coast of Spain.

Four Israelis Killed in Suez Fighting

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli and Egyptian tank and artillery units battled across the Suez Canal for the second straight day today and four Israelis were killed and six wounded in the fighting, an army spokesman said.

The skirmish at El Qantara in the canal's northern sector brought the heaviest Israeli casualties since a fierce cross-canal exchange July 14 that left seven Israelis dead and 22 wounded.

The Egyptians scored a direct hit on an Israeli bunker, injuring several soldiers, the spokesman said. Israeli gunners claimed strikes on two Egyptian tanks, but it was not known if they were destroyed.

The battle began at 7:55 a.m. local time when the Egyptians opened up with small arms and machine guns, gradually intensifying their barrage to recoilless rifles, tanks and heavy artillery, the spokesman said.

Israelis returned the fire. U.N. observers requested a cease-fire and the Israelis agreed to it about an hour after the firing began. But a few minutes later, the army spokesman said, Egyptians began firing again with light arms and the Israelis shot back.

Israeli forces claimed Wednesday they sank three Egyptian motor boats in two separate incidents at Port Taufiq at the southern end of the canal.

They charged that Egyptians sent boats with armed troops into canal water thereby breaking the U.N.-sponsored agreement whereby both Israel and Egypt promised to refrain from boats in the canal.

Art Patrons Find Show 'Delicious'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The exhibit at the San Francisco Museum of Art Wednesday night was just a friendly protest, the contributing artists said.

For the audience, though, it was simply delicious.

The event was an exhibition of food sculpture—edible works of art shaped from everyday kitchen items.

In the corner stood a tall relief of a plump, nude woman titled "The Hostess, 1967." At her base, the guests gathered and chatted about the work as they scraped off her skin-colored, cream cheese-dip flesh and ate it with crackers.

A young hippie couple, mixing a free meal with their aesthetic pursuits, smiled at each other as they moved on to their entree—a dog (or was it a raccoon?) sculptured with meat loaf and nuts.

The show was just a gag, said a San Francisco artist, Gordon Cook.

"We see it as a cheerful, friendly way of commenting on the gallery art scene. It seems like art today has become a commodity rather than an expression."

Dominican Peace Only Skin Deep; Real Stability Appears Far Off

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — U.S. military intervention in the Dominican Republic ended a year ago. The aftertaste of the enforced American presence has been diluted by time but probably never will disappear.

Also put aside but not forgotten are the varied causes of the April, 1965, civilian-military uprising that brought on the intervention, first by U.S. forces and later, under the name of inter-American peace force, by a small corps of Latin-American troops.

The violence that many feared would explode when the foreign troops left never attained the predicted proportions. For many here, the past year has been the most peaceful and promising in almost a decade. Still, real political stability seems years away in this Caribbean republic where democratic rule is getting its first prolonged trial since 1930.

The last of the American troops on Dominican soil, units of the 82nd Airborne Division, left Sept. 20, 1966. At peak strength, in mid-1965, U.S. forces numbered some 24,000 on land and about 8,000 in ships offshore.

Although a newly elected government was in power, backed by the United States and the Organization of American States, there were widespread fears that evacuation of the American troops would bring on a renewal of fighting between factions involved in the revolt. The result was a series of vendetta-type clashes and acts of terrorism that reached a climax late April.

Things have quieted since then, but there are authenticated reports of arbitrary arrests and detentions of the political opposition, chiefly the Dominican Revolutionary party—PRD—and by army guards in rural areas. The Dominican army is known to regard the PRD and its self-exiled leader, Juan Bosch, as its deadliest enemy. Because of harassment, the PRD is threatening to pull out of important 1968 municipal elections.

The continuance of military pressure on the PRD, despite President Joaquin Balaguer's repeated assurances to party chiefs, is one of many signs that while the armed forces solidly support the president he has a limited control over them.

As a result of the brush with disaster during the revolt, the army has been thoroughly reorganized and re-equipped with substantial U.S. help.

Many Dominicans say the armed forces still lack the material to make it a professional, a political military institution. This, they add, is the real problem.

Trunk Yields Bodies of 3 Infants

NEW YORK (AP) — An old trunk found in the basement of a Manhattan apartment house has yielded the bodies of three mummified infants, one of whom may have been dead for 47 years.

The bizarre and unusual case came to light when the trunk was opened Wednesday night. Dr. Paul Herman, assistant medical examiner, set an autopsy examination of the infants today to determine how they died.

The discovery was made when John Hartnett, superintendent of the building on West 181st Street in the Washington Heights section advised tenants to clear a basement storage area of unwanted items.

Hartnett told police he found one trunk with the name Anne Solomon on it. It was opened in the presence of Jacob Solomon, 67, whose wife Anne died in 1954 at the age of 48.

Inside the children were found lying side by side—swaddled in cloth and with newspapers wrapped on the outside. Dr. Herman described the bodies as "well kept."

One of the papers was an edition of the defunct Evening Sun dated Jan. 20, 1921. Another was the defunct Evening World dated March 4, 1922 and the third was the old Evening Journal of Oct. 17, 1922.

Solomon told police his wife had been previously married in 1933 but that he had no knowledge of her having given birth to any children.

make these things—and some of them are really rather beautiful—then eat them up. It seems appropriate," Cook explained.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Transportation Department is postponing until spring the start of three-hour rail passenger service between Washington and New York.

Service has been set to start Oct. 29.
The system involves the use of self-propelled electric cars on the 250-mile trip, but not enough of these are ready, the department announced after a meeting with spokesmen for the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Budd Co., manufacturer of the cars. In addition, the announcement said, performance and reliability tests must be completed.

The federal government is providing $11.5 million for the project while the Pennsylvania Railroad is contributing $45 million.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department has assigned a new job to the diplomat who three months ago claimed the administration ignored his warnings about the coming of a Mideast war. The war erupted in June.

David Nes made his charge after he and most other American diplomats were expelled from Cairo when Egypt broke diplomatic relation with this country.

Nes will report to work Monday at the department's bureau of intelligence and research, analyzing situations in foreign countries and evaluating diplomatic and other reports.

Nes, 50, has considerable experience in affairs of Africa, Southeast Asia and the Middle East but it wasn't known which area he will specialize in. He was head of the U.S. Embassy in Cairo as charge d'affaires between March 1967 and May 21, when the newly designated ambassador, Richard H. Nolte, arrived.

Doctor Improvises, Aids Fellow Prisoner

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — No doctor was available and a prison inmate was losing blood rapidly from self-inflicted gashes in each arm.

Then someone remembered Dr. Roosevelt Jackson, a physician jailed for contempt of court growing out of divorce proceedings.

Jackson could find no pulse when he reached the inmate, and no surgical instruments were available. But a sewing machine was nearby.

"They brought me a needle and some white sewing machine thread, and I tied off the vessels," the physician said.

The emergency sutures were replaced at a hospital and the inmate now says he wants to live.

Jackson returned to his cell.

Dahlias Top Favorite List Of Area Farmer

DAHLIA EXPERT — Paul Congrove, farmer on Route 22, is well pleased with his dahlia crop this year. Although dry, the plants have flourished and blossoms are at their peak and will be until frost gets 'em.

Paul Congrove, a farmer who lives on Route 22 east in the first house beyond the Moeller greenhouses, is a dahlia fancier. And he does mean fancier. He fancies these fall flowers so much that he has 140 plants in back of his house and about 57 plants along Route 22.

And are they beautiful! Every color and every size! Dahlias are well staked at the Congrove's place.

There are two different varieties at each stake. Dahlias are also well labeled at the Congrove dahlia patch. This of course in the opinion of the garden editor is always a difficult job and a good labeler rates high as a good gardener.

When does Paul Congrove plant his dahlias? When his farm work is finished. And this year he was really slow because he did not get his corn out until quite late in the season due to the weather.

CONGROVE has been interested in dahlias for three or four years now. It was Guy Stockman who gave him this interest in dahlias. And now he has a dahlia fever that is equal if not higher than Stockman's.

Both men belong to the Scioto Valley Dahlia Society which has an upcoming show Sept. 30 and Oct. 1. The show, though close at hand it's at the Ross County Fairgrounds, is not a real temptation to Congrove to exhibit. He just loves to grow 'em. But he thoroughly enjoys his association with other dahlia men and learns a lot by attending meetings. Dahlias incidentally are considered a man's flower. And it is certainly true the men do love 'em. Generally speaking they like the big varieties. This is true of Congrove. But he plants plenty of small ball and cactus types for his wife who favors these.

Incidentally Fern Congrove is a dahlia convert. She was a rosarian at one time with special interest in her rose garden of some 25 plants. This summer she refrained from buying new roses and is spending her time with dahlias.

Last fall when Paul Congrove was laid up with a heart ailment guess who dug the dahlias! It was Fern Congrove and one of the farm helpers.

Incidentally when frost has got his dahlias, Congrove cuts off the stalk six or eight inches above the ground, allows them to ripen in the soil for a few days and then digs them. He stores them in his sister's unheated cellar. His sister, Garnett Russell of Hallsville, has become a dahlia fancier herself and is given many of Congrove's extra tubers. Congrove allows soil to cling to the tubers during the storage season. He feels the Russell cellar is just about the best place he could winter the tubers.

Congrove is displeased with about three rows of his plants. They lack vigor. He thinks the peach trees along the edge of the dahlia garden sort of reached out and took the moisture. He has watered his dahlias twice this summer. After all the farm well provides water for the household and the cattle so of course the dahlias come last.

We remarked about the excellent foliage on all the plants. There was vigorous growth and excellent color and no sign of insect damage. He sprayed his dahlias once. He used along with Rapid - Gro an insecticide, Isotox One spraying has been sufficient.

The Congroves and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Stockman recently had a dahlia lover's field day when they went on a jaunt that took them to Kingwood Center at Mansfield to the dahlia garden and to Rocky River Dahlia Nursery.

Favorites? Well, Arthur Godfrey is a big one that has bloomed consistently with fine large flowers for many weeks. Kid's Climax is another one that performs well. Lois Walcher is a vibrant purple tipped with white. It has bloomed and bloomed, but it has a flaw — a weak neck.

Golden Treasure is another good one, yellow with a rich golden center. And all the Croydens are good. Croyden's Ace is the plant that has provided his biggest blossoms, 15 inches in diameter. And Croyden's Robin is a dandy. Harvest Moon is a copper color sport of Croyden's Masterpiece.

Paul Congrove and Guy Stockman were talking to C. H. Bowen who convinced them that for real sport they should try the

Asters Are Disappearing Along Road

The garden editor made a sad little excursion down the Whisler-Hallsville road last week. This tour is an annual event. Each September, I go along this road to admire the wild asters that grow along the boggy ditches about a quarter of a mile from the County line road.

There is an especially charming tall aster with quarter-size blooms that are as blue as chicory. It is the prettiest wild aster that I know.

At various times I have tried to transplant a start of this gem of the aster world. One year I succeeded in acquiring a root for my own garden that flourished.

This spring I grubbed out the cherished aster and left goldenrod which is a nuisance and an underground root spreader. Gardeners do the craziest things!

SO I took the mattock and spade along on the recent excursion. To my sorrow only a few plants are left where some years ago this species of aster grew in great profusion.

The entire roadside had been moved recently. So plants would not have been blooming anyway. But close examination caused me to believe these lovely asters are disappearing from this locality.

I once wrote a couple of nurseries about this aster thinking it was so rare and beautiful that they might want to add it to their list catalogue. The nurseries seemed uninterested.

I took a branch of it to Floyd Bartley, Pickaway County naturalist, who immediately identified it as Purple Stemmed Aster.

This aster with the chicory blue flowers has foliage that is quite a bit more refined than the usual fall blooming wild aster.

Bartley was amused that I thought I had discovered something rare. But he softened the blow by agreeing that it was indeed just about the prettiest wild aster that could be found.

BUT THE LITTLE jaunt was sad. Not just because I did not find the lovely asters in profusion as I had hoped.

But it came to me suddenly that this very thing could be happening to many other wild flowers along many other country roads.

Congrove has another method of crossing two desirable plants — that's the toothpick and honey method. He puts honey in the center of two flowers he wishes to cross. He does this with a toothpick. The bees do the rest.

Paul Congrove is an expert dahlia man with a fine planting of beautiful flowers. Don't go to see his garden unless you are prepared to grow dahlias because as sure as you're livin' this man will have you believing dahlias are more fun to grow than any flower a-goin'.

Garden Gossip

This summer I have learned of two dahlia plantings that wintered outdoors. Bill Cook did not bother to dig and store seedling dahlias that were planted one year at the 4-H and Grange building. The dahlias have appeared now for couple of years and have bloomed nicely.

Mrs. Lawrence Wright, Route 3, has some ery pretty dahlias blooming in her border. She told me the same thing. Almost as cheap as petunia plants she had not thought it was worthwhile to dig and save the tubers. They wintered over in the flower border like any other perennial.

Did everybody get a gift from a coffee company? The gift was a pleasant one, two coffee seeds and a little plastic pot filled with peat moss. When planted they will develop into coffee plants.

I purchased a Brazilian coffee plant last year from a nursery. It had a stem about ten inches high with a few shining waxy leaves atop of it. It was, I regret to say, a grotesque looking plant. It did not respond to my tender care in any way. But during the summer in its outdoor location new leaves sprouted at the bottom of the stem.

Paul Johnson had the pleasure recently of visiting the farm and garden of Miss Dheel and Harford Renick. Paul Johnson was bug-eyed over the visit. He did not believe it possible for one man to grow from seed and cultivate so many plants. Paul tells me that Harford Renick has a great many plants in the house too.

The Renick garden is strictly Old Virginia with flower beds arranged in designs. And each flower bed is planted with one specific annual.

In St. Louis at Forest Park they still have parterres of flowers arranged in more intricate patterns. This is a hold-over from the Renaissance type of gardening and is still done in a grand fashion at some of the fine old manor houses and castles of England.

I was thinking that parterres were not to be seen in Columbus and suddenly I came upon such a planting in Franklin Park.

Fern Congrove showed me such a beautiful and interesting little collarette dahlia with red petals and white collar. It was too insignificant for Paul Congrove to bother about, but I went into ecstas over it. To me it looked a little like a clematis blossom.

When the Congroves asked which dahlia I liked best in their garden I said, "Nick's Orchid". This is an adorable lavender that I often see in shows.

Thanks to an ad in The Herald and WRE our dog is back home. And thanks to the young lad who found him wandering in the quite bewildered on Route 56, Sept. 9.

My husband thought the dog was awfully glad to get home. He said he rushed around the yard and took a swim in the pond.

Handy Hatfield assures me that systemic poisons will be used more and more as time progresses. If so I wish they would not put such terrifying warnings on the labels.

Guy Stockman is quite disappointed in his dahlias this year. The soil at their new home is not conducive to dahlia growing.

However that will not stop a dahlia-crazy fellow like Guy. He's planning on importing lots of good dahlia earth to the new place.

Mrs. Ed Wallace, as usual, has beautiful marigolds and dahlias in her back garden on N. Court St.

Mrs. Milton Kellstadt, 427 N. Court St. laughingly recalled that when she moved into her house 46 years ago there was no planting around the foundation. She purchased spirea Van Houttei, then quite new on the market. In time it flourished and the whole neighborhood got starts from the Kellstadts. Her spirea is still lovely in the spring.

It's nice to be remembered by flowers you give people. The late Mrs. Trimble Parker of Chillicothe gave me many things, but each fall I remember her for the tall pale blue aster that grows in my garden.

When we saw some especially pretty dahlias at Third National Bank we inquired who had grown them. Maixne Poling had brought them to the bank.

Mrs. Carl Martin's dahlias are coming along in a fine fashion and she is very thrilled about them. She lives midway between Goodie's Nursery and Mrs. Kelson Bower. So she has it made as far as neighborhood advice is concerned.

On my hurried trip to St. Louis last week I was pleased to see so many trees in the section where my hotel was. Trees were old and beautiful. Right there growing with the fine gingho trees were big specimens of Ailanthus (a weed tree not allowed in Columbus).

Our Circleville Ailanthus trees with their big clusters of coral colored seed pods have been especially beautiful this month. But if every seed in every pod grew we'd be in a forest of Ailanthus for sure. Fortunately

Purple Ironweed Can Be Used In Flower Garden

A good many wild flowers do not belong in the polite society of a flower garden. Their members are so atrocious that they crowd out the more delicate and polite posies.

And I can tell you that some beautiful wildlings can be included only at the risk of much hard work and many fervent wishes that you had listened when people warned you.

For instance I have trumpet vine in my July-August garden. It spreads perniciously and as much as six feet away from the parent stalk little trumpet vines come up.

However there is one plant with good manners that could be included in your garden. It is the vibrant purple ironweed. It endures heat and dry spells. It's coarse, but colorful. It is a perennial and if seed heads are cut off after blooming you will have no trouble with it.

One year I included it in a mass arrangement with flowers of shades and tints of violet. Fair visitors were interested and very few recognized it as the field weed it is.

It can provide a fine splash of color in a season when there is a dearth of bloom. It's height can easily be controlled by cutting off to the desired size.

We were most interested to read that Victor Ries includes this plant among his late summer bloomers.

this does not happen.

Ailanthus is also called tree of Heaven and Stink tree. Nevertheless Circleville trees are diminishing. Helen Fickard Gunning pointed out to me last summer that if each tree that died were to have a replacement there would be no dearth of trees.

Mrs. Lawrence Wright showed me a picture of the big sycamore tree on the George Foreman farm. It is the biggest tree in Ohio and the biggest sycamore in the United States.

Lawrence Wright proved to be a valuable weather man one time. He had kept a weather record for many years. Some state men were doing some sort of research and wondered how they could find out about the weather a certain year. Mrs. Wright said, "Ask my husband". And he was indeed able to give the researchers valuable information. He's got a rain gauge in his garden and the rainfall is always entered in his daily weather report.

Percy Seen as Favorite Son; Dirksen May Head Delegates

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the 58-vote Illinois delegation ratifies the deal, Sen. Charles H. Percy will get the state's favorite-son designation and Sen. Everett M. Dirksen will claim a limelight at the 1968 Republican convention.

Percy, a relative liberal and a dove on the Vietnam war, got clearance Tuesday from Dirksen, the conservative GOP leader of the Senate and a hard-liner on Vietnam, for home base support to prospect the Republican presidential nomination field.

The price tag on his agreement is the expected designation of Dirksen as chairman of the state delegation, his appointment to the national platform drafting committee and his selection as chairman of that group.

Dirksen looks to this forum, with its attendant glare of public exposure, to further his campaign for re-election to a fourth Senate term. Dirksen, who will be 72 in 1968, may find the going tough, particularly if Democrat Adlai Stevenson, III, is his opponent.

The Dirksen-Percy accommodation, worked out in the interest of Illinois GOP unity, will require the cooperation of convention delegates elected in next June's primary.

In 1964 the Illinois delegation stuck with Barry Goldwater like a person in a wall. There is no positive assurance an organization-oriented delegation will go along with Percy, who is not exactly a favorite with party conservatives.

Dirksen said in a statement drafted after consulting with Percy that there are some "mechanical problems" about designating his colleague as a favorite son but "I don't believe they are unsurmountable."

While he put Percy "high on any list" of possibilities for the nomination, he said when asked whether the junior senator is a "serious candidate." "I refuse to be entrapped" by an answer.

For Percy, the Dirksen clearance enhanced the possibility he will go into the convention as a possible compromise choice of the moderates if Gov. George Romney of Michigan suffers a setback in the preliminary campaigning. It would be difficult for Percy to maintain this position without Illinois backing.

House Stand on Rat Control Bill Reversed by Close Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, by one vote, has tentatively approved a $40-million increase in funds authorized for rat extermination and other state health programs.

If sustained on a vote scheduled for today, the action could partially erase what many members consider a black mark on the House for its rejection in July of the administration's $40-million rat control bill.

The measure adopted 129 to 128 Tuesday as an amendment to a $950 million health bill would increase the funds available for state public health programs by $20 million this year and $20 million next year.

When debate concluded for the night, Republicans were attacking an emergency $58-million hospital aid program included by Democrats in the bill.

Overwhelming passage of the House measure was expected today after action on the two controversial portions.

While funds in the bill are given for the states to use according to their needs, backers of the additional $40 million indicated they hope it would go largely for rat control. Twelve states have included rat control in programs developed under the health act passed initially last year.

The amendment was sponsored by Reps. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., and Charles M. Mathias Jr., R-Md., both of whom supported the administration effort in July to set up a new rat control program in the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"The rat is more than the carrier of disease," Mathias said. "He has become the symbol of official cynicism."

Dahlias Top Favorite List Of Area Farmer

DAHLIA EXPERT — Paul Congrove, farmer on Route 22, is well pleased with his dahlia crop this year. Although dry, the plants have flourished and blossoms are at their peak and will be until frost gets 'em.

Paul Congrove, a farmer who lives on Route 22 east in the first house beyond the Moeller greenhouses, is a dahlia fancier. And we do mean fancier. He fancies these fall flowers so much that he has 140 plants in back of his house and about 57 plants along Route 22.

And are they beautiful! Every color and every size! Dahlias are well staked at the Congrove's place.

There are two different varieties at each stake. Dahlias are also well labeled at the Congrove dahlia patch. This of course in the opinion of the garden editor is always a difficult job and a good labeler rates high as a good gardener.

When does Paul Congrove plant his dahlias? When his farm work is finished. And this year he was really slow because he did not get his corn out until quite late in the season due to the weather.

CONGROVE has been interested in dahlias for three or four years now. It was Guy Stockman who gave him this interest in dahlias. And now he has a dahlia fever that is equal if not higher than Stockman's.

Both men belong to the Scioto Valley Dahlia Society which has an upcoming show Sept. 30 and Oct. 1. The show, though close at hand it's at the Ross County Fairgrounds, is not a real temptation to Congrove to exhibit. He just loves to grow 'em. But he thoroughly enjoys his association with other dahlia men and learns a lot by attending meetings. Dahlias incidentally are considered a man's flower. And it is certainly true the men do love 'em. Generally speaking they like the big varieties. This is true of Congrove. But he plants plenty of small ball and cactus types for his wife who favors these.

Incidentally Fern Congrove is a dahlia convert. She was a rosarian at one time with special interest in her rose garden of some 25 plants. This summer she refrained from buying new roses and is spending her time with dahlias.

Last fall when Paul Congrove was laid up with a heart ailment guess who dug the dahlias! It was Fern Congrove and one of the farm helpers.

Incidentally when frost has

Romulus Hanover Jug Choice

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — The weatherman gave a promising morning line for today's 22nd annual running of the Little Brown Jug.

Cloudy skies, temperatures in the 70s and only a slight chance of light showers were forecast, but the memory of torrential rains which drenched the track during the last two runnings of the pacing classic for 3-year-olds still lingered in the memory of harness racing fans.

Carlton Fans 16, Loses 3-1

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Steve Carlton pitched a cracker jack of a game but he got beat by a Cookie.

Carlton, who has contributed 14 victories to St. Louis' pennant push this season, set a season strikeout high Wednesday night, fanning 16 Philadelphia batters. But he came away a 3-1 loser, mainly because of Cookie Rojas.

Rojas drove in the Phillies' tie-breaking run with a fourth-inning single and then scored an insurance run after doubling in the seventh as Philadelphia survived Carlton's strikeout pitch for the victory.

Elsewhere in the National League, San Francisco topped Chicago 5-1, Los Angeles edged New York 4-3, Cincinnati pounded Atlanta 9-4 and Houston nipped Pittsburgh 5-4.

In the American League, Minnesota whipped Kansas City 6-2, Detroit walloped New York 10-1, Boston edged Cleveland 5-4, Baltimore swept a doubleheader from Washington 4-3 and 6-3 in 10 innings and Chicago beat California 6-4.

Chris Short bested Carlton on a four-hitter and struck out nine. The two-team total of 25 strikeouts fell one short of the major league record set by Philadelphia and Pittsburgh in 1965. And except for an enthusiastic fan, the record might have been broken.

"I knew I was striking out a lot of batters," said Carlton, "but I didn't know how many. Then someone at the end of the seventh yelled from the stands that I had struck out 15. From that point I kind of lost my concentration. I began throwing bad pitches."

Carlton, 14-9, struck out only one man in the final two innings after the fan shouted at him. Ed Spiezio homered for the Cardinals.

Rudolph Defending Course Title

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — Armed with a new putter and an aching back, Mason Rudolph sets out today in defense of his Thunderbird Classic Golf Championship, his only tour triumph in the last three years.

The 33-year-old Tennessean headed for a doctor and a hot tub, immediately after completing Wednesday's pro-amateur event. He was several strokes above par and said he picked up his ball on a couple of holes.

"It's a dull ache," Rudolph said, flexing his torso and gripping the base of his spine. "It started during the Philadelphia Golf Classic last weekend."

Rudolph tied for third at Philadelphia and picked up $6,160.

A new putting stroke and an Arnold Palmer-model putter have given Rudolph some nice paychecks of late after a slow start.

He won $4,937.50 in the Westchester Classic with his old "blue goose" mallet putter then switched to the Palmer model and won a pro-am event in Dalton, Ga., shooting a 32 over the final nine holes. Then came Philadelphia, which brought his 1967 winnings to $33,395.74.

First prize in the $150,000 Thunderbird is $30,000.

Jack Nicklaus and a hot Billy Casper took low pro honors in Wednesday's pro-am with 68s over the 7,055-yard, par 72 Upper Montclair Country Club layout.

CHS Tigers Face Rugged Grid Foe

Circleville's Tigers face a real test Friday in undefeated, unscored on Pleasant View.

The PV Panthers were the only team to better Circleville in last year's successful season.

Coached by the canny Don Eby, Pleasant View has 15 lettermen returning from that team.

Circleville faculty adviser Don Poling reminded Tiger grid fans the price of grid ducats has increased this year. However, the new tickets have not yet arrived from the printer and the ones bearing last year's prices will be used.

Advance sale of tickets for students will be held today and tomorrow, immediately following the school day, at both the senior and junior high schools.

The key loss suffered by the Pleasant View team through graduation was that of outstanding quarterback Charlie Hess who ably directed the Panther victory last year.

EBY has fullback Nick McCoy, a 175 pound senior who is a punishing runner, returning, along with halfback Tony Ward, a flanker a year ago.

Last year McCoy carried the ball 17 times, gaining 168 yards on the ground. He was also on the receiving end of two aerials that accounted for 46 yards, giving him a total of 214 yards in the game.

Going into the game last year, Circleville had opened with two comparatively easy victories, while the Panthers had been edged by one point in both previous games.

This year both teams have opened with "breathers". The Panthers opened against Bishop Wehrle, winning 24-0. Last week they played Grandview gaining a 28-0 victory.

Pleasant View went on to gain a share of the Metropolitan League with a 4-1 loop record. The Tigers were undefeated for the remainder of the season.

In many departments the Panthers appear to be stronger this year.

TIGER Coach Paul Starr expects a wide open game Friday. Although the new Pleasant View quarterback does not pass as well as Hess did, he is a much stronger runner.

Scouting reports show the Panthers have a pair of halfbacks that are not only excellent runners, but fine blockers as well.

Club Getting Revenge for 1-Run Losses

CLEVELAND (AP) — "The players are trying to even up the one-run defeats of last year all in one month," said Boston Manager Dick Williams Wednesday night after his Red Sox had edged the Cleveland Indians, 5-4, to maintain a share of the American League lead with the Minnesota Twins.

"These games are more of a strain on you," said Carl Yastrzemski, who had four hits in five trips, including his 41st homer, and also scored the winning run. "It would be less of a strain if we'd win 9-1, but lost by the same score."

Sam McDowell, who started and left for a pinch-hitter in the seventh inning with the score tied, 4-4, gave up three of Yastrzemski's hits, including the homer.

"I was exceptionally quick with my hands and I hit his mistakes," Yastrzemski explained. "I have a day like that about every three weeks."

Cleveland Manager Joe Adcock said McDowell was throwing more slow stuff than usual.

Don't ask me why," he lamented. "A guy with his speed should be throwing his fast ball."

Yastrzemski scored the winning run on Reggie Smith's two-out single in the ninth inning. He touched off Boston's winning rally with a single, moved to second on George Culver's wild pitch, stayed there when George Scott walked and scored when Smith lined a single to right field.

In addition to Yastrzemski's homer, McDowell gave up home runs to Rico Petrocelli and Mike Andrews.

His opponent, 20-game winner Jim Lonborg, was tagged for homers by Larry Brown, Tony Horton and Max Alvis.

Both McDowell and Lonborg worked but seven innings after going into the game fighting for the league strikeout lead.

Lonborg struck out six to push his league-leading total to 232. McDowell whiffed nine and is in second place with 227 strikeouts.

Culver was the loser and now has a 7-3 record. The winner was John Wyatt (10-6).

Steve Hargan is scheduled to start for the Indians in the final game of the series tonight. He will be opposed by ex-Indian Gary Bell.

Key Spartan Sets Season's Record

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — Key Spartan toured the half-mile track at the Delaware County Fairgrounds in 2:03 4-5 Wednesday for a national season record in winning the $14,576 Ohio Standardbred Trot for 2-year-olds.

Nevele Pride, holder of the old mark, won the first heat in 2:04 4-5 - making his best time-but in the second heat fell by a neck to Keystone Spartan, driven by Del Miller.

Keystone Spartan's victory ended Nevele Pride's 17-race winning streak.

Kelso retired from thoroughbred racing with purse earnings of $1,977,896.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — There's a full slate of action on an attractive Ohio collegiate football program Saturday.

Former Circleville grid star Tom Fletcher is playing tackle on the Oklahoma Northeastern A. and M. Junior College football team.

Fletcher has been credited with nine tackles for the squad, making the initial contact on seven of them. He also has been credited with seven assists by Northeastern chartkeepers.

The Golden Norsemen of Northeastern go after their third victory Friday when they meet the Tulsa University Freshmen.

To date, the Norsemen have defeated OMA, 30-0 and Kilgore, 32-13. Kilgore was rated number one in a pre-season junior college coaches poll.

Most of the top attractions are under the lights but in a tilt scheduled Saturday afternoon, Bowling Green kicks off its season at home against the Quantico Marines and battered Kent State tries to rebound against Northern Illinois.

The Falcons, with junior quarterback P. J. Nytray at the controls, figure to get started on a winning note. Kent, which absorbed a 30-6 licking at the hands of Buffalo last week, should have enough to get by the Illinois eleven.

Ohio University, Toledo, Xavier, Dayton, Cincinnati, Miami, Akron, Wittenberg, Muskingum and Youngstown all play at night.

Coach Bill Hess' Bobcats will be bidding for their second straight Mid-American Conference triumph when they visit Marshall.

Toledo which lost a tough 20-14 to Ohio last Saturday, goes ory of harness racing fans.

Romulus Hanover, sporting a 14-2 record for the year including a victory in the Messenger Stakes, first jewel in pacing's Triple Crown, was the 4-5 choice to win the $84,778 event.

Post time at the Delaware County Fairgrounds track is 1:45 p.m. The first horse winning two heats will get $33,215.76.

Romulus Hanover will be out to match last year's victory here by a full brother—Romeo Hanover. "He's in excellent condition, sound as can be," said driver Billy Haughton, who expressed unhappiness with the No. 8 post position drawn by the 3-year-old pacer.

"I'd have to say No. 8 post is not the way I would have liked it," Haughton said.

If the track at the Delaware County Fairgrounds is dry, the colt, winner of $245,399 this year, is likely to set a record. He's the colholder of the season's fastest time on a half-mile track, 1:58.25. The best time in Jug history is the 1:57 heat by 1965 winner Bret Hanover.

One major contender will be Jim Hackett's Best Of All, winner of $133,207 and 11 races in 18 starts this year.

JIM CAMPBELL

JERRY MYERS

Today's Tigers are Jim Campbell, 17, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Campbell, and Jerry Myers, 17, son of Mrs. Mary E. Myers, 1253 Norfolk Ave. Campbell, 5-feet 11 inches tall, is a 166 pound end for the Red and Black. Myers tips the scales at 163 pounds although he stands only 5 feet 4 1/2 inches and plays guard. Both are seniors.

Reds Make Sweep Of Atlanta Series

ATLANTA (AP)—Young John Bench didn't get to keep the ball after his first major league hit, but he picked up another baseball as a keepsake after Wednesday night's game.

Bench and Vada Pinson both slammed three-run homers to power the Cincinnati Reds to a 9-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves and a sweep of the three-game series. Bench also singled twice.

Catcher Bench, the Reds' newest rookie sensation, said after the game that he did not get the ball after his first hit, but as for his first major league home run ball, "I got it right here. Coach Ray Shore went and got it for me out of the bullpen."

"I feel a bit more confident each time I go out there," the 19-year-old rookie added. "I feel a little more sure . . . so I can worry more about my hitting."

Bench's homer put Cincinnati ahead for good in the sixth inning.

The Reds wasted no time jumping on Jim Britton, who was making his major league debut. Pete Rose drew a lead-off walk, Tommy Helms singled and Pinson followed with his 17th season homer.

But Britton did better for the next few innings and the Braves got two of the runs back in the fourth when four out of the first five batters singled off Milt Pappas. They went ahead, 4-3, in the fifth on Angel Hermoso's single and Henry Aaron's 38th season home run.

When the Reds came up again, Lee May and Tony Perez led off with singles. Deron Johnson bunted into a force play, but then Bench slammed the ball over the left field fence.

Pappas, who was lifted for a pinch hitter in the sixth, picked up his 16th victory in 27 decisions. Don Nottebart finished the game for the Reds, who are idle today.

Long Ball Hitters Spark Tiger, Red Sox Victories

By RON RAPOPORT

Al Kaline, who struck early and often, got an early good night. Carl Yastrzemski, who saved his best shots for the late innings, had to stay around to the bitter end.

Kaline hit his 25th homer in the first inning of Detroit's 10-1 rout of the New York Yankees Wednesday night. After he doubled in the Tigers' run-scoring third and fifth innings, Al was sent home to put his feet up.

But the Red Sox, who have made comeback victories a way of life lately needed Yastrzemski every inch of the way against Cleveland.

He hit his 41st homer in the sixth inning then got his fourth hit in the ninth, a single, and rode home on Reggie Smith's single with the run that won the game 5-4.

The Red Sox stayed tied for the American League lead with Minnesota, which beat Kansas City 6-2 earlier in the day, while the Tigers remained in fourth place, one game out and a half-game behind third-place Chicago, which beat California 6-4. Baltimore took a doubleheader from Washington 4-3 and 6-3 in 10 innings.

In the National League, Philadelphia beat St. Louis 3-1, San Francisco took Chicago 5-1, Cincinnati crushed Atlanta, 9-4, Houston edged Pittsburgh 5-4 and Los Angeles defeated New York 4-3.

"These one-run games are more of a strain on you," said Yastrzemski. "It'd be less of a strain if we'd win 9-1 and lose by the same score."

Tiger Manager Mayo Smith said Kaline's first-inning shot unglued Yankee starter Al Downing, who usually gives the Tigers a tough time. Don Wert, who seems completely recovered from his hamstring pull, added a homer in the eighth.

Joe Sparrma, who gave up only seven hits, lost his shutout when Charlie Smith homered in the ninth. Sparrma's record now is 15-9.

The Twins got all the hitting they needed from Tony Oliva and Bob Allison, who each hit two-run homers, but Harmon Killebrew drove in a couple of runs with singles just to make sure. Dean Chance won his 19th game, giving up just four hits and striking out 13.

The White Sox got a homer and three runs batted in from Tommie Agee and clutch relief pitching from Bob Locker, who pitched three innings of hitless ball before giving up a final run in the ninth. Rick Reichardt homered for the Angels.

The Red Sox stayed tied for the American League lead with Minnesota, which beat Kansas City 6-2 earlier in the day, while the Tigers remained in fourth place, one game out and a half-game behind third-place Chicago, which beat California 6-4.

Baltimore took a doubleheader from Washington 4-3 and 6-3 in 10 innings.

In the National League, Philadelphia beat St. Louis 3-1, San Francisco took Chicago 5-1, Cincinnati crushed Atlanta, 9-4, Houston edged Pittsburgh 5-4 and Los Angeles defeated New York 4-3.

"These one-run games are more of a strain on you," said Yastrzemski. "It'd be less of a strain if we'd win 9-1 and lose by the same score."

Tiger Manager Mayo Smith said Kaline's first-inning shot

Player's Injury May Hurt Detroit

DETROIT (AP)—The Detroit Tigers suffered a severe blow to their American League pennant chances Wednesday when they learned 17-game winner Denny McLain dislocated two toes in his left foot and would be lost for at least until Monday and possibly for the remaining nine games of the season.

McLain, knocked out in his last four starts, said he dozed off while watching television at his home Monday and injured his foot when he arose from a chair.

"The foot fell asleep on me and when I got up it just collapsed outwards," said McLain. "I don't know if anyone will believe it, but that's what happened."

Manager Mayo Smith, who indicated he had planned to use only three starters the remainder of the season anyway, said McLain would remain in Detroit to take treatments during the weekend series in Washington and report to the team in New York on Monday.

The injury reduced the Detroit starting rotation to Earl Wilson, Joe Sparna and Mickey Lolich.

Drug Claims Subject to Modification

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Academy of Sciences, engaged in an unprecedented study of more than 2800 drugs marketed between 1938 and 1962, has found so far that "only a few totally ineffective drugs are marketed."

But the same study—called for by the Food & Drug Administration more than a year ago—has also disclosed that many of the efficacy claims offered by manufacturers for individual drugs "will be subject to modification."

The Academy, a private organization of scientists that often advises the government, disclosed these and a few other "general finding" in relating that the first group of recommendations from its drug efficacy study are soon to be forwarded to FDA.

The report, contained in the Academy's monthly News Report publication indicated the study is only partially completed.

The academy said reports that would go to FDA would say whether a given drug was considered "effective," "probably effective," "possibly effective" or "ineffective."

Evidence to support such judgments would also be included.

into the River Clyde with the crack of a magnum of champagne on her bows.

Up to now the ship had been known only as Q4. Her predecessor, the old Queen Elizabeth, is going out of service soon.

"May God bless her and all who sail in her," said the queen, and an emotional roar erupted from 30,000 throats as the liner glided down the slipway, sending a huge wave rolling across the river.

A massive cloud of dust and a screech of drag anchors rose up as the 58,000-ton liner ground smoothly into the water. Seven tugs bustled around to bring the ship under control.

By naming the liner after herself the queen maintained the tradition of Britain's Atlantic queens. John Brown's Shipyard, where the new liner was built, was also the birthplace of the Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth.

Queen Elizabeth looked nervous at the launching ceremony. Surrounded by members of her own family, including Prince Philip and Princess Margaret, she had to wait 15 seconds while a fault in the microphones was repaired.

After announcing the name the queen had another anxious wait. She pressed the launching button, and nothing happened.

Millions of television viewers shared her anxiety. Sounds of hammering were heard for a moment. And then, 2½ minutes later, the liner began gliding away.

At 58,000 tons the new liner is no giant compared to the Mary's 81,237 and the Elizabeth's 82,997. But with the use of weight saving alloys her accommodation is comparable — 2,000 passengers on the Atlantic, 1,500 while cruising.

Education, Welfare Still Getting Largest Slice of General Fund Pie

By ROBERT E. MILLER
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Education will continue to take the lion's share of Ohio's tax money, with welfare programs running a respectable second despite a period of unprecedented prosperity.

A look at record high general fund spending—to total more than $2 billion in the 1967-69 biennium—showed that education takes 51 cents of each dollar in the fund. Of this, elementary and secondary schools get 40 cents, higher education 11 cents.

More than $1 billion was earmarked for all types of education in the current biennium—all but $327 million for elementary and secondary schools. The legislature raised taxes more than $300 million to help pay for improvements that included teacher pay raises averaging out at about $800 and a statewide teacher salary scale.

Welfare programs are costing about $395.6 million during the same period—the highest ever—and they now get about 29 cents of each tax dollar. These programs however, are subsidized by the federal government—some as much as 55 to 60 per cent.

The welfare and education drain on the general fund leaves only 20 cents of each dollar to operate state departments, pay salaries, maintain buildings, and finance employee retirement and workmen's compensation programs.

Fourteen cents of each dollar goes to salaries—increased by the last legislature an average of 15 per cent. Three cents goes for maintenance, one penny for retirement and workmen's compensation, and two cents for other subsidies.

State Finance Director Richard L. Krabach says increasing enrollments are primarily responsible for "astronomical increases in the field of education."

It will cost even more, he said, "if we can attain the administration's goal of low cost, quality education for the masses."

Krabach said one major problem the administration is striving to meet is an expected increase in university enrollments from 131,476 in 1966 to 217,630 in 1969—"an increase of 65 per cent in just three years."

Gov. James A. Rhodes has called for a network of universities and branches that would provide higher education facilities within 30 miles "of every boy and girl in Ohio who wants to go to college."

Krabach said many students are deprived of college because parents who might have an income of $5,000-$6,000 a year cannot afford to pay the high cost of room and board for them. "If they can stay at home, they could afford it," he said.

Krabach said the administration found when it took office that many students had no opportunity to go to college, particularly in the big cities.

"Now, the state has taken over the universities in Toledo, Akron, and Youngstown, created Wright State at Dayton, achieved a working agreement with the University of Cincinnati and established 14 branch campuses," Kkrabach said.

The fact welfare programs are at an all-time high while employment is setting new records is no surprise to welfare officials. But they concede it is difficult situation to explain to an increasingly-tax-conscious public.

Welfare Director Denver

Barber School Standards Raised

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. James A. Rhodes signed a new law today requiring the licensing of barber schools and at least a 12th grade education for members of the state Board of Barber Examiners.

It was the 411th—and final—enactment of the last legislature to be signed into law. It becomes effective Dec. 20.

Of the total, Rhodes vetoed only an act dealing with replacement of motor vehicle brake equipment.

White says relief rolls grow as the population increases because there are more blind, more crippled, more impoverished children and abandoned mothers.

"The thing people fail to realize is the fact that the vast majority of these people are not employable," White said.

Krabach brushed aside criticisms that the state is not doing enough to increase welfare payments and asserted the federal government—and not the state—is to blame if they are too low.

"Every increase we have had in welfare payments in the past 10 years has been at the state level. Some of these people who come here carrying signs should be marching in Washington," he said.
